An additional $3,057 was collected in 50-cent and $1 fines and $2,318 in $2 and $5 fines for neglected parking violations. President Ponders Moves On Energy As Solons Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, presented with a series of options by his economic and energy advisers, will decide later in the week whether to impose a new $1-per-barrel oil tariff hike, a spokesman says.

Ford presumably will reach a decision by Wednesday since, in the absence of action to the contrary, the dollar-a-barrel increase automatically would take effect Thursday.

Ford conferred Monday evening with Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb, Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller and other officials who make up his top advisory group on energy and economic policy.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen made the announcement that options had been presented to Ford and that the President would make a decision later in the week.

In Congress, the House Ways and Means Committee continued to work on a bill to try to reduce energy use by raising gasoline taxes. Ford has not recommended an increase in the gasoline tax.

The committee voted Monday 21 to 13 to accept at least tentatively a compromise backed by its Democratic leadership which would increase the 4-cent-per-gallon federal gasoline tax by 3 cents in 1976. An additional boost of up to 20 cents a gallon in 1977 would be added if conservation efforts fail to curb consumption in 1976.

Much of the money to be raised through this additional 20-cent-a-gallon levy would be refunded through a system designed to cover motorists' essential everyday driving needs. The result would be to make pleasure driving more costly and thereby less attractive.

The compromise would make the 20-cent-a-gallon hike effective if U.S. gasoline consumption in 1976 exceeds the 1973 record of 6.67 million barrels of gasoline a day.

The compromise calls for a tax hike starting with 5 cents a gallon for up to a 1 per cent boost in consumption, 10 cents for up to a 2 per cent boost, 15 cents for up to a 3 per cent boost, and 20 cents beyond.

Since consumption in the first three months of 1975 is 1.4 per cent below that for the first three months of 1973, committee tax staff experts said evidence indicates this would result in "a modest or no increase in 1977, as a result of 1976 consumption."

Police Seek Local Man Charged With Assault

A 46-year-old Circleville man, Lincoln Isaac, is being sought by Circleville Police on a felony assault warrant they issued today after Isaac was alleged to have attacked another local man with an unknown weapon.

Bernard Engle, 53, S. Pickaway St., is in "very poor condition" in the intensive care ward at University Hospital, Columbus, according to Police Sgt. Larry Pontious.

He is being treated for injuries allegedly associated with what hospital officials describe as a hole extending from immediately below his right eye to a point at the back of his skull.

No one witnessed the point in the 2:30 a.m. Tuesday fight in which Engle was critically injured, police say.

AN AGITATOR IS A JEER LEADER

According to the report, Isaac confronted Engle outside Libby's and Larry's Bar, 150 W. Main St., in an argument involving Donna Schob, a waitress there who is Isaac's ex-wife.

As the fight developed, Ms. Schob returned to the bar to summon the aid of Circleville Police. When she returned to the street, Isaac had vanished and Engle was lying unconscious in a pool of blood.

Police Ptl. Ron Smith and Jim Ford searched the area for Isaac after Engle was taken to Berger Hospital's emergency room.

He was transferred immediately to the Columbus hospital.

Berger Hospital Notes Renewed

Circleville City Council and Pickaway County Commissioners Monday following a joint meeting with Berger Hospital Board of Directors approved legislation to renew notes totaling $500,000.

The notes are to finance construction of the ancillary wing at the hospital.

The present notes, owned by Rose-Wade and Co. expire May 28. The notes were renewed by the Toledo based financial firm at a rate of 5 1/4 per cent, one-half per cent under the present rate.

When the hospital construction is completed and the bills are paid the city and county can enter into a bonding procedure to repay the cost of construction.

Americans Leave Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. helicopters landed on Saigon rooftops and at Tan Son Nhut air base today and began evacuating all but a few of the remaining 800 to 900 Americans who fought off South Vietnamese desperately trying to flee before Communist-led forces take over.

U.S. Marines and armed civilians used pistol and rifle butts to smash the fingers of Vietnamese trying to claw their way over the 10-foot wall at the American Embassy as helicopters lifted off the roof. At the airport, angry Vietnamese guards fired at busloads of evacuees and shouted, "We want to go, too."

Some tried to jump over the wall at the embassy and landed on the barbed wire. A man and woman lay on the wire, bleeding. People held up their children, asking Americans to take them over the fence.

At the same time, South Vietnamese air force men began a mass flight from their homeland. The Thai Foreign Ministry said 75 planes carried about 2,000 Vietnamese to Utapao air base in southern Thailand.

Civilian officials of the South Vietnamese government were also reported fleeing as rumors spread that the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese would soon march into the city.

Two County Girls Win Scholarships

Two Pickaway County senior girls, Karen Jean Adams and Evelyn Howard, have been awarded scholarships by the Circleville Business and Professional Women's Club.

Recipient of a $300 scholarship is Karen Jean Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Adams, Route 1, Kingston.

Miss Adams, who plans on majoring in secretarial science at Columbus Technical Institute, maintains a 3.2 average at Logan Elm High School. Extra-curricular activities include Future Homemakers of America, Future Nurses of America, Elm Log school newspaper, Skanda yearbook, varsity basketball secretary, and Quill and Scroll.

Evelyn Howard, a senior at Circleville High School, was awarded a $200 scholarship.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Howard, 141 E. Union St.

Miss Howard is an honor graduate and, as the result of her work as a camp counselor, plans to become a teacher of deaf children.

Among her extra-curricular activities, Miss Howard lists participation in the junior and senior class plays, Girl's Athletic Association, girls' Interscholastic volleyball, Science Club, Drama Club, Hi-Y and Student Council.

She is also active in the Episcopal Youth Club and 4-H. Special awards she has received include first place in a school short story contest and an award for a speech on "What It Means to be a Citizen of the U.S."

The two young women will be presented with their scholarships at the May meeting of the B.P.W.

Wheelchair Awareness Month Set

Frank E. Barnhill, mayor of Circleville has designated the month of May 1975 as Ohio Wheelchair Awareness Month.

He has urged all citizens to support the Pickaway County Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults, and any other organization working on behalf of the handicapped in wheelchairs or those with any physical limitation.

The purpose of the "Awareness" month is to focus public attention on the numerous and unnecessary obstacles which a handicapped person in a wheelchair, on crutches or with leg braces encounters on streets, sidewalks and in public buildings. Many of our public areas, not only in Pickaway County but throughout our nation, might as well have signs posted "Closed To The Handicapped" because of their inaccessibility.

On May 1 Mayor Barnhill will personally participate as a wheelchair occupant while he experiences firsthand some of the architectural hazards and barriers in and around Circleville.

It is not definitely known how many of the handicapped in Pickaway County find it necessary to use the wheelchair as a form of mobility, the Easter Seal Society however, has on loan 35 of its wheelchairs which are being used by the handicapped in the area.

Schlesinger said in Washington about 4,000 Americans and South Vietnamese were evacuated within the first three hours after the U.S. airlift began. The Pentagon declined to say how many Marines were involved in the operation.

U.S. fighter-bombers flew air cover high over the city for the evacuation. Officials said the U.S. Embassy would soon close, ending 30 years of official American involvement in the Indochina War.

As the Americans pulled out, South Vietnamese police and soldiers looted buildings they had occupied. They carried out refrigerators, furniture, air conditioners and other household goods.

Besides the South Vietnamese planes which flew to Thailand, a DC6B that had been used by high-ranking South Vietnamese officials landed at Clark Air Base in the Philippines with 130 persons aboard, including air force men and a handful of women and children.

While most Americans were pulling out, a few remained behind. Among them were a handful of newsmen and missionaries.

"We have talked about this for years," said Max Ediser, 28, of Turpin, Okl., who works with the Mennonite Central Committee. "We could never come up with a definite answer. Now we realize that having talked of love to our Vietnamese people, and told them not to yield to fear or ignorance, we cannot leave them in this hour of need. So we are staying."

The Thai government said it had advised the U.S. Embassy that "all planes belonging to the Cambodian and South Vietnamese governments flown to Thailand must be turned over to the Thai authorities, and we expect to return them to the next Cambodian and South Vietnamese governments."

Pullout Brings Shoving, Firing

TAN SON NHUT AIR BASE, Saigon (AP) — Dark rain clouds began billowing up in the southwest as hundreds of Americans were brought in bus caravans to Tan Son Nhut Air-base for evacuation from Vietnam.

Vietnamese guards fired at the first bus at the gates and one report said some Vietnamese passengers were wounded.

Hundreds of South Vietnamese soldiers carrying weapons converged on the base.

"We want to go, too!" shouted a jeepload of armed South Vietnamese rangers as one bus pulled into the airport.

Armed U.S. Marines pushed and hit Vietnamese trying to get inside the U.S. defense attaché's compound where those being evacuated waited for the helicopters coming from U.S. Navy carriers offshore.

Wrecked and burned motorcycles littered the entrance to the compound. American cars were crashed into ditches, some with windows shot out. One was left with its motor running, lights on and doors open. Others with U.S. Embassy markings were parked helter-skelter on the base.

South Vietnamese guards fired into the air to halt civilian cars trying to drive into the compound.

Americans arriving with Vietnamese friends hustled them past nervous South Vietnamese checkpoint officials.

Vietnamese military officers with their families tried to squeeze past the American Marine and civilian guards but were stopped at gunpoint.

Two Viet Cong rockets whistled overhead and exploded behind the compound, sending Marines and evacuees diving for the pavement.

As word of the evacuation spread, some government officials telephoned The Associated Press office to ask if they could be evacuated.

Four buses drove around Saigon picking up American, European and Vietnamese evacuees.

When they stopped, Vietnamese families carrying small traveling bags would run up and try to push onto the buses. A few got on but many were left behind.

Two Vietnamese army colonels changed from their uniforms into civilian dress beside a bus carrying newsmen, then pushed their way aboard.

Four armed South Vietnamese paratroopers, drunk and in a sullen mood, pointed their thumbs down and said: "Americans Number 10," South Vietnamese slang meaning "no good." Knots of curious Vietnamese stood and watched the buses roll past.

Chilly Reception For Refugees?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The welcome awaiting thousands of Vietnamese refugees being brought to the United States apparently will be a generally chilly one.

Three military bases will temporarily house the refugees during a period of 90 days or more, a Pentagon spokesman announced Monday. The bases are Camp Pendleton, Calif., Ft. Chaffee, Ark., and Eglin Air Force Base in Florida.

The announcement drew cool reactions in the three states.

"I have serious questions about the policy we're pursuing in the evacuation program," said Sen. John L. McClellan D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee. "The Congress should have been consulted more fully before such a massive refugee program of Vietnamese people was launched."

In Niceville, Fla., where the refugees are expected to arrive at Eglin on Wednesday, the local reaction was dismal.

"We have one of the highest unemployment rates ever, and a recession that's going into a depression," said one local resident who called a radio station talk show. "Now, I'm going to have to pay for them, too."

"They can't speak English and they have no trade," the male caller said. "I would like to round them up and send them back."

"We should be at the airport and not let those refugees off the plane," said one female caller "because we're going to have to feed them."

The federal government said that about 38,000 refugees had been evacuated from Indochina as of Monday — 12,800 were evacuated to the Philippines, 1,700 to Wake Island and 23,400 to Guam.

Deputy assistant secretary of state for congressional relations, Samuel Goldberg, said that the refugees would later be settled in all parts of the country.

He said the State Department is encouraged by the response of volunteer organizations that want to find homes for the refugees.

In California, where almost 1,000 refugees have arrived at Camp Pendleton, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. sharply criticized "haphazard" federal plans to relocate, even temporarily, the thousands of homeless war victims in the state.

He said California cannot afford more unemployment which the refugee influx would spur.

Perhaps the harshest criticism came from Rep. Burt L. Talcott, R-Calif., whose district includes Camp Roberts near San Luis Obispo. He said in Washington that he was "pleased to announce" that neither Roberts nor Camp San Luis Obispo will be used to shelter the refugees.

"Generally my district was more positive, understanding and compassionate than some other areas," he said.

"But there is another feeling that, damn it, we have too many Orientals."

According to a recent Harris poll, 56 per cent of Americans questioned supported the mercy flights of Vietnamese orphans to this country. The poll said 32 per cent opposed the flights and the rest were uncertain.

Summit Meet Pushed Back To September

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say the slow pace of nuclear arms talks as well as uncertainty about a European security conference are the main reasons for delaying President Ford's summit meeting with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Once tentatively planned for late June, the meeting has now slipped to September at the earliest, but the Soviets remain firmly committed to detente, these officials said in interviews.

They point particularly to the recent reaffirmation of Brezhnev's foreign policy by the Communist party's central committee and they credit the Soviets with playing a constructive role in the Middle East.

The delay is attributed primarily to preparation of the 10-year pact limiting strategic nuclear arms that Ford and Brezhnev will sign when the Soviet leader comes here.

Negotiators at Geneva are running into technical problems that U.S. officials said were not foreseen when a late June summit seemed likely. This may delay the 35-nation Helsinki conference recognizing Soviet hegemony over eastern Europe in return for some gestures toward the West.

"It's unfortunate when all sort of meaning gets read into this," said one top official about speculation surrounding the delay in Brezhnev's visit.

Another said it was being set back simply for convenience. This official described himself as "bullish on detente" following the April 16 Soviet central committee meeting.

The committee lauded Brezhnev's successes in cultivating better relations with Western nations and said the "imperialist Cold War is suffering a failure."

When Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's step-by-step Middle East mediation collapsed last month, senior officials were apprehensive that Moscow would launch a diplomatic offensive to unify the Arabs against Israel.

As it turned out, the Soviets took the initiative of attracting high-level envoys from Iraq, Syria and Egypt to Moscow. U.S. officials are convinced that Soviet efforts are pointed toward a successful Geneva peace conference instead of trying to shove Kissinger aside and isolate Israel.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, weakened by concern over the interest rate outlook, drifted lower again in quiet trading today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 2.51 at 807.49. Losers outstripped gainers by more than a 2-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said it appeared investors generally were on their guard after Monday's rise in bond market interest rates in the face of continuing heavy borrowing demand by the government, with its need to finance the federal budget deficit.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index slipped .13 to 84.05.

In Washington, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon reiterated his concern over the effect of prospective budget deficits on the capital markets.

He said the Treasury has so far raised only about 25 per cent of the money it will need to seek in the credit markets.

Selling Of Babies Outlined To Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel of newsmen have outlined to a Senate subcommittee the operations of baby sellers that include lawyers offering up to $10,000 for infants to unwed mothers receiving pregnancy counseling.

The testimony came in the first of two days of hearings by the Senate children and youth subcommittee which is probing independent placement of infants by doctors and lawyers.

Maury Z. Levy, editorial director of "Philadelphia Magazine" said one of his staff members who did volunteer work at a local pregnancy testing and counseling clinic told him that some lawyers were often seen outside the clinic's offices and that they "had approached a number of young women who'd gone in for pregnancy counseling, trying to persuade them to keep their babies until term, then to give them up for adoption."

"Their means of persuasion were very blunt and very green," Levy said. "They were offering money, as much as $10,000 for a baby. They, in turn, would sell the baby to someone else, usually turning a profit of between $5,000 and $10,000."

Levy said his publication's investigation led to people in Miami who were shipping babies out of state if the price was right.

He said certain lawyers in Florida were operating "what amounted to stud farms, places where young girls would be given money to carry unwanted babies, places where young girls were paid to be inseminated.

"We learned of a network, a baby-buying connection that ran through Texas and Mexico and sometimes as far away as South America," Levy said.

Robert McAuley of the Cleveland Plain Dealer said an investigation by his newspaper found a loose-knit national referral service designed to put pregnant women in touch with lawyers seeking to arrange adoptions for clients who were willing to pay the price.

McAuley quoted a New York lawyer, Joseph Spencer, whom McAuley said related the following:

"It (an infant) can be as little as $2,500, if you want a Korean child, to a lot more. Now, for instance, for a White Caucasian child at birth, most of the lawyers quote substantial amounts, but even there it doesn't run much beyond $13,000."

The reporters followed testimony by Joseph H. Reid, executive director of the Child Welfare League of America, who said it is estimated that as many as 5,000 babies go through the black market.

He said widespread use of contraceptives and abortions has caused a decrease in infants who are more desirable than others for adoption.

Penn Central Eyes Possible Lawsuit

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Trustees of the bankrupt Penn Central say they can't comment on the federal government's plan to restructure failing railroads because it fails to detail how much of their property would be acquired and how present owners would be compensated.

They indicated Monday that inadequate reimbursement would result in major lawsuits against the United States.

The court-appointed trustees said they were disappointed and frustrated because of the omissions in the United States Railway Association plan.

Under the 1973 Regional Rail Reorganization Act the Penn Central is to become part of ConRail, the slimmed-down system which Congress hopes will revitalize rail service in the northeast and midwest.

USRA issued its preliminary report last Feb. 26 and issued corrections three weeks ago.

Penn Central trustees noted the plan was "almost totally silent" on three fundamental questions to stockholders and creditors of America's biggest railroad. They listed these concerns as:

"How the properties to be taken from the estate will be valued; how and when that value will be paid to the

McCord's Sentence Reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate burglar James W. McCord Jr. will be eligible for release from federal prison next month as result of an order cutting his sentence to four months.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica reduced McCord's one-to-five-year sentence Monday but gave no reason for his action. McCord's attorney, William A. Mann, had asked that McCord be released immediately because of the key role he played in unraveling the Watergate cover-up.

McCord, working on the farm at the Allenwood, Pa., prison camp when he learned of Sirica's action, said, "I am very happy, I am very thankful, very grateful."

McCord entered Allenwood March 21 after losing a two-year fight to stay out of prison. He had served about one month in jail before he was sentenced.

The 51-year-old McCord, a CIA agent for 19 years, was arrested inside the Watergate offices of the Democratic National Party headquarters on June 17, 1972, with four other men. At the time he was security chief of then President Nixon's re-election committee.

McCord was convicted on Jan. 30, 1973, of burglary, wiretapping and conspiracy in connection with the break-in.

It was McCord's letter to Sirica, read in open court on March 23, 1973, that disclosed the Watergate roles of various Nixon administration and re-election committee officials and recounting pressures on him to contain the cover-up. The letter touched off investigations which eventually led to the resignation of Nixon and conviction of many of his top aides.

Israel Nixes Full Return Of Territory

PARIS (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon again rejected Arab demands for the return of all territory occupied by Israel during the 1967 war, but he did not specify just what territory his government will not give up.

Speaking at a banquet given for him by Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues Monday night, Allon said:

"In the present geo-strategic situation in the Middle East and in the context of peace, it is possible on the basis of honorable concessions to grant Israel the defensible borders needed for her security while, at the same time, giving the neighboring countries the possibility of achieving the maximum of their national interests."

Sauvagnargues said the main conditions for a Middle East settlement — Israeli withdrawal and settlement of the future of the Palestinian people — "could only be fulfilled in the framework of an overall settlement" that guaranteed secure borders for all states in the region, including Israel.

Allon said his government favors a negotiated settlement of the Palestinian problem but the settlement must be negotiated with Jordan, not with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

He added that Israel is prepared to resume the Geneva peace conference at any time "in Geneva or elsewhere."

Ford Political Plans Said Sabotaged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several of President Ford's advisers feel someone is trying to sabotage his plans to run for the presidency in 1976 by planting false news stories, a White House spokesman says.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen made the statement Monday in response to an article in this week's edition of Newsweek which says Ford told a meeting of political intimates he would not seek election because of his wife's health and because he felt he could not spend the time and the money needed for the race.

"The President wants it known that this story in Newsweek is untrue. The President held no such meeting," Nessen said. "The President definitely plans to run for election in 1976 and he intends to announce his candidacy in the near future."

In New York, a spokesman for Newsweek said the magazine stands by its story.

Asked if the appearance of the Newsweek story indicates someone may be trying to sabotage Ford's plans, Nessen said, "Some of his advisers feel that someone is trying to sabotage his campaign."

Nessen said the advisers, whom he did not name, have not "zeroed in on any particular person or persons. But they have some suspicions."

Asked what evidence the advisers might have, he replied, "It's a suspicion. Whoever leaked that incorrect story is not a friend of Newsweek or the President." He said Ford was "very puzzled by the motivation of whoever did this."

Men Resentenced To Life Terms

ANDERSON, Ind. (AP) — Two men once ordered to die for the holdup slaying of an Anderson pawn shop owner were resentenced Monday to life in prison.

The death sentences imposed on Charles Brith, Gary, and Ralph Williams, Indianapolis, in Madison Circuit Court in 1972 were set aside by the Indiana Supreme Court after the U.S. Supreme Court struck down capital punishment. Brith and Williams were convicted in the August 1971 death of Kenneth Goldstein.

The legislature restored the death penalty in Indiana after the high court's ruling, but only a few such sentences have been imposed with none carried out.

Judge Carl T. Smith sentenced Brith and Williams Monday.

Indiana Budget Compromise Set

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — House and Senate budget conferees worked until early this morning to iron out money differences in a one-year budget compromise.

The conferees reached agreement on state police pay, higher education spending and mental health appropriations. Sen. Lawrence Borst, R-Indianapolis, said the mental health program was a new one that the conferees hope will meet federal standards.

The agreement on state police pay calls for a special $840-a-year bonus in addition to merit and cost-of-living increases.

The legislature will meet Wednesday, the last day allotted for the 1975 session.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, weakened by concern over the interest rate outlook, drifted lower again in quiet trading today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 2.51 at 807.49. Losers outstripped gainers by more than a 2-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said it appeared investors generally were on their guard after Monday's rise in bond market interest rates in the face of continuing heavy borrowing demand by the government, with its need to finance the federal budget deficit.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index slipped .13 to 84.06.

In Washington, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon reiterated his concern over the effect of prospective budget deficits on the capital markets.

He said the Treasury has so far raised only about 25 per cent of the money it will need to seek in the credit markets.

USRA issued its preliminary report last Feb. 26 and issued corrections three weeks ago.

Penn Central trustees noted the plan was "almost totally silent" on three fundamental questions to stockholders and creditors of America's biggest railroad. They listed these concerns as:

"How the properties to be taken from the estate will be valued; how and when that value will be paid to the estate, and how much of the property of the estate will be taken."

The trustees said that the preliminary plan indicated that payment would be in ConRail common stock and noted "the adequacy of that method of compensation is, to say the least, highly doubtful." They added:

"If the contemplated compensation scheme is retained in the final system plan the estate will in all likelihood, be remitted to an action in the Court of Claims to recover from the United States the major portion of the value of its property."

The trustees suggested that the USRA might consider alternative solutions, possibly transferring portions of the bankrupt roads to profitable railroads.

Senators Open Debate On Deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is beginning debate on how large next year's federal deficit should be with conservatives saying it should be lower than the Budget Committee proposed and liberals contending it should be higher.

The debate on a government budget control resolution begins today.

The committee suggested a $365 spending level for the fiscal year beginning July 1 with a $67.2 billion deficit.

This compares with a $353 spending total and $60 billion deficit proposed by President Ford.

The difference results from the view of the majority on the committee that higher spending is needed than President Ford supports in order to end the recession.

The majority also contends that the President has understated by several billion dollars the deficit that his own program will bring.

The debate marks the first use by the Senate of the processes of the 1974 Budget Control Act, which was designed to give Congress much firmer control over federal spending.

The resolution as finally adopted by both the Senate and House will in effect set up a congressional budget for 1976. It will not be required that Congress follow the totals in the resolution in acting on money bills this year, but it is intended that these figures be a guide to appropriations decisions.

The House will begin debate Wednesday on the version of the budget resolution proposed by its Budget Committee. This would fix a $368.2 billion spending target, with a $73.2 billion deficit.

Israel Nixes Full Return Of Territory

PARIS (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon again rejected Arab demands for the return of all territory occupied by Israel during the 1967 war, but he did not specify just what territory his government will not give up.

Speaking at a banquet given for him by Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues Monday night, Allon said:

"In the present geo-strategic situation in the Middle East and in the context of peace, it is possible on the basis of honorable concessions to grant Israel the defensible borders needed for her security while, at the same time, giving the neighboring countries the possibility of achieving the maximum of their national interests."

Sauvagnargues said the main conditions for a Middle East settlement — Israeli withdrawal and settlement of the future of the Palestinian people — "could only be fulfilled in the framework of an overall settlement" that guaranteed secure borders for all states in the region, including Israel.

Allon said his government favors a negotiated settlement of the Palestinian problem but the settlement must be negotiated with Jordan, not with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

He added that Israel is prepared to resume the Geneva peace conference at any time "in Geneva or elsewhere."

Ford Political Plans Said Sabotaged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several of President Ford's advisers feel someone is trying to sabotage his plans to run for the presidency in 1976 by planting false news stories, a White House spokesman says.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen made the statement Monday in response to an article in this week's edition of Newsweek which says Ford told a meeting of political intimates he would not seek election because of his wife's health and because he felt he could not spend the time and the money needed for the race.

"The President wants it known that this story in Newsweek is untrue. The President held no such meeting," Nessen said. "The President definitely plans to run for election in 1976 and he intends to announce his candidacy in the near future."

In New York, a spokesman for Newsweek said the magazine stands by its story.

Asked if the appearance of the Newsweek story indicates someone may be trying to sabotage Ford's plans, Nessen said, "Some of his advisers feel that someone is trying to sabotage his campaign."

Nessen said the advisers, whom he did not name, have not "zeroed in on any particular person or persons. But they have some suspicions."

Asked what evidence the advisers might have, he replied, "It's a suspicion. Whoever leaked that incorrect story is not a friend of Newsweek or the President." He said Ford was "very puzzled by the motivation of whoever did this."

Men Resentenced To Life Terms

ANDERSON, Ind. (AP) — Two men once ordered to die for the holdup slaying of an Anderson pawn shop owner were resentenced Monday to life in prison.

The death sentences imposed on Charles Brith, Gary, and Ralph Williams, Indianapolis, in Madison Circuit Court in 1972 were set aside by the Indiana Supreme Court after the U.S. Supreme Court struck down capital punishment. Brith and Williams were convicted in the August 1971 death of Kenneth Goldstein.

The legislature restored the death penalty in Indiana after the high court's ruling, but only a few such sentences have been imposed with none carried out.

Judge Carl T. Smith sentenced Brith and Williams Monday.

Indiana Budget Compromise Set

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — House and Senate budget conferees worked until early this morning to iron out money differences in a one-year budget compromise.

The conferees reached agreement on state police pay, higher education spending and mental health appropriations. Sen. Lawrence Borst, R-Indianapolis, said the mental health program was a new one that the conferees hope will meet federal standards.

The agreement on state police pay calls for a special $840-a-year bonus in addition to merit and cost-of-living increases.

The legislature will meet Wednesday, the last day allotted for the 1975 session.

Family Room 'Ship Shape' With Plywood Wall Paneling

A beautifully decorated home doesn't just happen; it is the product of careful planning.

This adage was especially true for a Vancouver, Wash., couple settling into their newly purchased home with unpacked "leftovers" and the drab, lifeless walls left by the builder.

Careful planning was needed to turn the drab into the delightful, weaving a personal mosaic to fit the family's lifestyle.

The first room on the agenda of reformation was the family room with its plain plaster walls and a red-brick fireplace.

Step one was a thorough search through local home improvement centers for decorating ideas and a wallcovering that would cover the textured wallboard.

There they found the choices virtually endless with an unlimited selection of wall paint colors, wallpapers, and a myriad of prefinished wall panelings, from natural woods to man-made duplications.

The final choice was paneling with the look of old planking and simulated nailheads.

Existing base moldings were removed, and panels first set side by side to achieve a harmonious balance of color and grain configuration.

Mrs. Homemaker assisted her handyman husband, too. She gathered the required tools for the project; measured the wall height in several places to assure accurate fitting, and probed through the wall with a long nail to find stud locations every 16 inches. (It may be 24 inches in some homes.)

This step provided a plus in the installation of the new paneling with random v-grooves also located on 16-inch centers.

Professional tips from a "how to" booklet were also helpful. They clued the do-it-yourselfer to paint strips on the wall where the plywood panel joints would come. Black spray paint speeded the process and minimized the visibility of the white gypsum board showing through panel gaps.

Using a straight edge and a soft lead pencil to provide a clear, even line, wall dimensions were marked on the reverse side of the panel. And cutting was made easier with a borrowed sabre saw and sawhorses.

By outlining the outlet box with chalk, the handyman was able to transfer its location and image to the back of the panel without too much difficulty. He then drilled 3/4 inch holes in the corners of the transferred outline to make the cutout.

Panel by panel the steps were followed, and adhesive was used to fasten the new prefinished plywood directly to the plaster.

The finishing touches came with the replacement of base moldings, and addition of new furniture and accessories.

A single wall of paneling changed this plain looking family room into a nautical showcase. The softwood tones of the paneling gave it a warmth that

This do-it-yourself couple now agree the paneling wasn't that hard to install.

Pleased with the results they are planning to reform a drab dining room wall.

State Obligated To Pay Cost Of Abortions, Ferguson Says

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Ohio Auditor Thomas Ferguson says the state "is obligated to continue to pay" for elective abortions for women on welfare despite an upper court victory Monday.

The 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed a lower court's decision which had ordered former auditor Joseph Ferguson to pay for elective abortions.

The issue arose last fall when the elder Ferguson challenged the law. Federal District Judge Robert M. Duncan of Columbus ordered the state to subsidize abortions for women on welfare.

The suit was filed by the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU), which represented several pregnant welfare recipients. The ACLU said Ohio's antisubsidy law violated Medicaid provisions of the Federal Social Security Act.

Ferguson said the state hopes to win a restraining order in federal district court until the case can be cleared up.

The three-judge panel said "there is no indication that Congress intended to require the furnishing of abortion services not required for the preservation of the health of a woman at a time when the performance of such abortions was illegal in most jurisdictions."

The decision added "In view of the disfavor shown toward abortions in other legislation, we are reluctant to infer that Congress intended to include required coverage for such controversial services without mentioning the subject."

The case was ordered returned to U.S. District Court of Southern Ohio, along with an overturned decision which threw out an Ohio statute banning such payments.

The appellate court ordered a three-judge panel convened to try the case on Constitutional merits.

The appeals court noted that the Supreme Court had ruled on the right to have an abortion but did not rule on use of public money to pay for them.

The decision said the issue remains arguable, but said the lower court avoided constitutional questions.

Beach Erosion Projects Readied

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said Monday that beach erosion control projects at Edgewater and White City Parks in the City of Cleveland, Ohio, will be recommended for re-authorization.

The two projects were considered to be dropped since last October when no local interest was shown in getting the projects under way since they were authorized in 1954.

However, the State of Ohio and City of Cleveland recently indicated interest in project completion.

A Page Of Opinion

Prolonged Observance

Next year may be the official bicentennial year for the United States, but celebrations in many communities across the nation already are well underway. It is not a case of jumping the gun on the observance. The American Revolution did not occur overnight.

Events leading up to the Declaration of Independence and the founding of the Republic occurred over a several-year period. The initial efforts directed toward independence frequently were spontaneous, uncoordinated activities engaged in by small, localized groups.

It is difficult for that reason to say with precision when the American Revolution really began. Even some of the major confrontations of the period, however, occurred well before the year 1776.

The "shot heard 'round the world," made famous by Emerson, was the initial confrontation between American volunteers and the British at North Bridge in Concord, Mass., on April 19, 1775. It is a date fully revered by the people of Concord.

Other events of the Revolutionary period, some of only local significance, already have been observed. Activities honoring thousands more are on agendas for the next year and a half. As reenactment of history unfolds piecemeal, the bicentennial observance demonstrates the scope and variety of unrest which finally led to Independence.

But what happens if they all knock him out?

A friend fresh back from a tour of the churches of Belgium reports a personal resurgence of religious fervor.

"I never prayed so much in my life," she said. "I got down on my knees in every single church and gave it all I had."

"What were you praying for?" I asked.

"To get to the next church safely," she sighed piously.

With the possible exception of Upper Volta, Belgium has the world's worst drivers. Belgians are not required to have a driver's license before taking over the wheel of a car. There is a legend — probably based on fact — that a buyer stepped into his new car one day in Brussels and drove it away. Right through the plate glass window of the dealer's showroom.

Except for the astronaut-cosmonaut hookup scheduled for July 15, the U.S. manned space program is kaput until the end of the decade.

There are a few odds and ends left in the inventory: two Saturn 5 moon rockets, two command ships, a backup Skylab space station, two Saturn 1-B's, lots of tools, assembly plants, and the massive mile-an-hour crawler that inches a Saturn to its pad.

Adds up to a lot of money. The spare Skylab alone cost $313,000,000. The two Saturn 5's cost $370,000,000 at 1971 prices. There was some thought of scrapping the more than a billion dollars worth of unused equipment and sharing it among museums. But cooler heads prevailed and it will be spared, at least until the Shah of Iran, let's say, decides to become an astronaut.

Once while playing Boston, the great nightclub entertainer was approached by a sober-sided committee which was taking up a collection to erect a new statue to Revere. Joe, a compulsively generous soul and authority on racehorses surprised the committee by turning it down. Why, they asked, perplexed.

Pat Moynihan will go through Harvard's revolving doors once more. Fresh back in his professor's chair after a disappointing tour as Ambassador to India, he had hardly cracked a book before being called on by President Ford to take over the difficult task of speaking for the U.S. at the UN.

The towering, personable Moynihan should do well, even though he once turned the job down when it was offered to him by President Nixon. He can make his voice heard without benefit of microphone. His problem,

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the most obvious reasons for inflation is the tendency of American industry to become less efficient in production. Productivity, or output per manhour, is lagging.

The lag isn't only in relation to previous productivity within the United States. Productivity lags also in comparison to that being achieved in other industrialized nations.

Uncorrected, the situation inevitably will make all the more difficult the job of restraining price increases, correcting the imbalance of international payments and achieving economic stability.

Academic, industry and government authorities all agree on the analysis that productivity improvements are basic to improvements in the American way of life. When he was chairman of the Price Commission, C. Jackson Grayson Jr. said it was the only real answer to inflation.

When he headed the National Commission on Productivity and Work Quality, John T. Dunlop argued in much the same manner. Now secretary of labor, Dunlop is again pressing the argument.

Testifying last week before a House Banking subcommittee, Dunlop called for the establishment of a productivity center, and for more investment in research and capital improvements.

But his argument sounded like a refrain. For years Americans have known about their lagging productivity and know they must take action.

like those of his predecessors, is that the State Department will consistently gag him if he departs so much as a quarter of an inch from policy. Matter of fact, now that we are beginning to play diplomatic footsie with Castro, the one nation our UN ambassadors have been allowed to lambast during the past 15 years — Cuba — may be ruled beyond reproach.

Which leaves him Albania.

Incidentally, the President, usually sensitive to the feelings of others, dealt brusquely with Amb. John Scali, the former newsman and TV commentator who has served so well in that frustrating post. The announcement of Moynihan's appointment was made before Scali was notified. That was short shrift for a man who labored long, hard and intelligently to bring a little substance to the deplorable job.

Somehow, however, little is done.

Even when action was taken to establish the National Commission on Productivity and Work Quality, its funding became sporadic.

Meanwhile, productivity improvements seem to be developing after a precipitous drop during 1974. An increase of sixtenths of 1 per cent was recorded in the first quarter, after a 2.7 per cent decline in 1974.

But there was a reason for that improvement — a reason that nobody wants to remain. The reason: recession. Producers were forced to trim their staffs, to close their less productive plants, to forgo plant improvements.

When the economy expands again, however, these same producers will have to add to their staffs, open up those less productive plants, and spend money for expanding capacity.

And when that happens, the betting is that the recent gains in productivity will be lost again. Lost, that is, unless the country learns more about how to improve productivity than it knows now.

As is sometimes said, the goal really is a simple one — to learn how most efficiently to use men, money and machines to produce goods and services.

But simple goals seem to be the most elusive.

New Rebate Plan Slated

DETROIT (AP) — A new rebate plan from Chrysler Corp., still trying to revive slumping sales, is expected today but the scope of the latest program might be scaled down from previous efforts.

Although refusing to confirm them, Chrysler spokesmen have not denied reports saying the firm will announce its new program at meetings with dealers. The first of those meetings opens today in a Detroit suburb.

The reports say the company, which suffered serious sales declines for mid-April, plans to offer rebates up to $200. The program could be limited to selected dealers with high inventories of unsold new cars.

Chrysler opened the rebate gate in mid-January, and it wasn't long before the other automakers followed suit. Now, even though the other firms would like to see better sales, they apparently have no plans to duplicate any new rebate offer at this time.

Rebates helped Chrysler halve its huge 139-day inventory earlier this year.

Chrysler extended its rebate plan, on a limited basis, until March 31. Other American car companies called off their rebate campaigns on March 1, complaining they didn't make money.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

We are constantly being bombarded with warnings about iron deficiency. They have finally gotten to me and now I want to be sure that I am getting enough iron.

Mrs. L.A., Ill.

Dear Mrs. A.:

Manufacturers of expensive dietary food supplements constantly warn the public, especially women, about "iron deficiency."

Such advertising promotions tend to induce in many women unnecessary anxiety.

The suggestion is sometimes made that the loss of blood by menstruation may be responsible for "iron deficiency."

The fear and anxiety that is produced is unjustified. A well-balanced diet contains the vitamins and minerals (including iron) necessary for normal function.

There is, indeed, a special type of anemia known as "iron deficiency anemia." This cannot be recognized by the paleness of the skin. The only way to determine this kind of anemia is by specialized microscopic studies of the blood. The size shape and number of red blood cells indicate to the physician the possibility of iron deficiency anemia.

When this is present, it can be readily rectified by adding iron supplements.

Before embarking on a program of buying expensive supplements, discuss the matter with your doctor. If no anemia exists, save your money and spend in on good nutritious food.

My nose is abnormally dry. It is constantly "crusty." It's most annoying. Is there any way to help?

Miss G.G., Nev.

Dear Miss G.:

Many people, especially in the winter, complain of this problem. Steam-heated rooms, chronic sinus infection and allergy may be responsible.

If infection exists, it must be halted. Topical application of ordinary baby mineral oil, followed by steam inhalation, can reduce abnormal dryness and crusting.

There is a special condition known as "ozena," which can be diagnosed by your doctor. I doubt if you have this relatively rare condition, but it should not be ruled out.

Special types of nasal irrigation with ordinary salt water or Dobells solution, used under a doctor's direction, can be very effective.

Shriver Seeks To Stir Up Interest In 1976 Candidacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — R. Sargent Shriver, the Kennedy in-law who was the 1972 Democratic vice-presidential nominee, says some significant high-level political support "would be extremely persuasive" in convincing him to seek the presidency next year.

But Shriver conceded in an interview here that, except for a statement of possible support from Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, "I haven't had any parade of officials coming in here and telephoning me to say, 'Why don't you consider running?'"

Shriver said he gets five or 10 letters a day asking him to run, that some friends and law associates think he should run and that a lot of people who worked for him when he ran the Peace Corps and the antipoverty program would be willing to help.

"But there's a huge step between that and being a candidate," said the 59-year-old brother-in-law of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and the late John F. and Robert F. Kennedy.

"If there was any reason to believe that significant practical down-to-earth people in the world of politics, if there was any reason to believe they really wanted me to run, then that would certainly cause me to give it the utmost consideration," Shriver said.

"But in fact, the reality is that there is no indication that's true," he added. "Unless people who are experienced and competent ask you to do it, I just think it's unlikely that anything would happen."

Covering a wide range of political topics during the hourlong interview in his Washington law office, Shriver also said:

"He thinks the Democratic party 'is in grave difficulties, first of all in getting a candidate who will unify the party and secondly a candidate who's got a program that can unify the country.'"

"He sees 'no set of circumstances that could persuade' Kennedy to run at the present time but that, if there is pressure to draft him at the convention, 'the circumstances at that time are really going to be tremendously influential in what Sen. Kennedy does or does not do.'"

"President Ford will be hard to beat in 1976 because, in addition to the problems being faced by the Democrats, 'anybody sitting in the White House starts out with 40 per cent of the vote.'"

Shriver said: "I don't think any of the candidates who are now contesting" for the presidency "appear to be saying anything or doing anything that touches the intelligence or the spirit or the emotions of Americans."

Salt Easily Added To Soil

MERCED, Calif. (AP) — Chester C. Conley, a Merced County farm adviser, says all irrigation water contains salt in this area. Water of good quality for irrigation can add nearly one ton of salt per acre foot used, he said, and on this basis up to four tons of salt per acre per year can be added to the soil.

"This points out the importance of good drainage in irrigated agriculture," Conley added. "If salt is allowed to accumulate in the root zone, it is a simple matter of time until yields will be reduced. An occasional flushing of this soil to depths beyond the root zone with off-season irrigations will keep the soil productive."

A Page Of Opinion

Prolonged Observance

Next year may be the official bicentennial year for the United States, but celebrations in many communities across the nation already are well underway. It is not a case of jumping the gun on the observance. The American Revolution did not occur overnight.

Events leading up to the Declaration of Independence and the founding of the Republic occurred over a several-year period. The initial efforts directed toward independence frequently were spontaneous, uncoordinated activities engaged in by small, localized groups.

It is difficult for that reason to say with precision when the American Revolution really began. Even some of the major confrontations of the period, however, occurred well before the year 1776.

The "shot heard 'round the world," made famous by Emerson, was the initial confrontation between American volunteers and the British at North Bridge in Concord, Mass., on April 19, 1775. It is a date fully revered by the people of Concord.

Other events of the Revolutionary period, some of only local significance, already have been observed. Activities honoring thousands more are on agendas for the next year and a half. As reenactment of history unfolds piecemeal, the bicentennial observance demonstrates the scope and variety of unrest which finally led to Independence.

Steel Use Increases

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— U.S. steel users are cutting into their inventories at a rate 500,000 tons a month faster than expected, leading steel makers to predict a boost in the level of orders as early as June, Industry Week reported today.

First-quarter figures showed inventories were being liquidated at a rate of about 1.5 million tons a month, the business weekly said.

Steel inventories at the beginning of this year were estimated to be about 8 million tons above the level early in 1973, the beginning of two years of strong demand. Domestic steel mill shipments for the first three months of 1975 totaled 22.6 million tons, about 1.4 million tons below estimates made early this year.

The brightest part of the steel-mill market is heavy products such as plates, railroad rails and wheels and axles for freight cars, the editors said. Demand for sheet products and steel bars used by the automobile and appliance industries remained sluggish.

Industry Week said one steel executive returned from a trip to Japan to report that business continued to lag in the islands and that steel executives there were forced to agree to a new labor contract containing a pay increase of nearly 15 per cent.

The executive said it appeared the price of steel for consumption in Japan would rise by about $35 a ton.

"If there was any reason to believe that significant practical down-to-earth people in the world of politics, if there was any reason to believe they really wanted me to run, then that would certainly cause me to give it the utmost consideration," Shriver said.

Adds up to a lot of money. The spare Skylab alone cost $313,000,000. The two Saturn 5's cost $370,000,000 at 1971 prices. NEW YORK (AP) — One of the most obvious reasons for inflation is the tendency of American industry to become less efficient in production. Productivity, or output per manhour, is lagging.

The lag isn't only in relation to previous productivity within the United States. Productivity lags also in comparison to that being achieved in other industrialized nations.

Uncorrected, the situation inevitably will make all the more difficult the job of restraining price increases, correcting the imbalance of international payments and achieving economic stability.

Academic, industry and government authorities all agree on the analysis that productivity improvements are basic to improvements in the American way of life. When he was chairman of the Price Commission, C. Jackson Grayson Jr. said it was the only real answer to inflation.

When he headed the National Commission on Productivity and Work Quality, John T. Dunlop argued in much the same manner. Now secretary of labor, Dunlop is again pressing the argument.

Testifying last week before a House Banking subcommittee, Dunlop called for the establishment of a productivity center, and for more investment in research and capital improvements.

But his argument sounded like a refrain. For years Americans have known about their lagging productivity and know they must take action.

Somehow, however, little is done.

Even when action was taken to establish the National Commission on Productivity and Work Quality, its funding became sporadic.

Build A Backsplash With Ceramic Tiles

A YOUNG homemaker installs a pregrouted ceramic tile backsplash in her kitchen. When all the sheets, held together by factory-applied white silicone rubber grout, are in place, she will seal the seams and edges with matching silicone material.

Tired of cleaning up those dingy backsplashes in your kitchen? Tucked between your wood or brightly colored cabinets and the easy-to-clean laminated countertops, "backsplashes" are aptly named. They seem to act as magnets for splashes — from frying, from dishwashing, from adding ketchup to Junior's snack — which often leave permanent stains on the painted or papered surface.

How about using real ceramic tile to perk up that backsplash? Ceramic tile comes in bright or neutral shades to complement your color scheme. Its clay body is strong and hard, and its fired-on glaze wipes clean with a damp sponge.

Modern technology has developed special easycare grout materials to fill the joints between tiles. One of these is a white silicone rubber that is smooth, waterproof, non-cracking, and highly stain- and mildew-resistant — as easy to keep clean as the tile itself.

A do-it-yourself ceramic tile system combines the advantages of ceramic tile and silicone rubber grout with easy installation. The system consists of sheets of tiles held together by factory-applied silicone rubber grout. The system comes in packages of 5 one-square-foot sheets, and is available in pastel blue, autumn gold, avocado, gardenia, gold mist and buckwheat.

Installation, using a common mastic adhesive is quick and easy, as each sheet contains 9 four-inch tiles. A caulking gun loaded with a cartridge of the silicone grout material is used to seal the seams between sheets, corners, and edges (no more crumb-catching crevice at the back of the counter!).

Fitting is simple. The tiles can be cut apart along the grout lines. Nippers or pliers can be used to cut tiles to fit electrical outlets or plumbing connections. Tiles can be scored, with a glass cutter, and split, using a pencil or rod as a fulcrum, or using a cutting kit made especially for the system.

From Garage To Playroom

If you are looking for ways to expand your present living quarters, it's a safe bet that you have up to 20 per cent or more of your home devoted to storing garden tools, bicycles and the like.

Most people use their garages for storage and park their cars in the driveway. If you do, don't you think it will be better to use the space as a playroom, den or bedroom, and build a small shed to house the garden tools, etc.?

Converting an attached garage to living space is probably the simplest and least expensive way to add room to your house. Since the foundation, footings and exterior framing are already in place, all that needs to be done is to replace the garage door with a window, add lighting, interior walls, floor tile and heat.

Humans Are Dependent On Green Plants

Human alienation, depression, rising crime rates and many other ills of modern times are partially the result of isolating man from the natural environment from which he has evolved, according to noted botanist and ecologist, Dr. Hugh Ilitis of the University of Wisconsin.

In research sponsored by the Horticultural Research Institute on the subject of man's need for living things, Dr. Ilitis has confirmed that when the normal relationship between man and his total environment is altered, whether by technology or isolation, the natural cycle of interdependence of all living things is broken. As a result, humans in this isolated condition become unfulfilled psychologically. It is basic to man's hereditary needs that he enjoy the security provided him by his direct relationship with nature, particularly green colorful plants and other animals.

In a recent talk to the American Association of Nurserymen concerning this research, Dr. Ilitis pointed out that while technology has advanced so rapidly, ecological concern has lagged too far behind to allow a balanced setting for man's survival. "Often," he said, "our attempts to create a natural balance are so small to affect the negative results of technological advance."

"Six geraniums in front of a fifty story building will not ease the crude lines or harshness of such a structure," he said, "What is needed is an offsetting effort of the same proportions as the technical advance itself."

In his talk before the nurserymen, Dr. Ilitis urged them to spread the word of "Green Survival" and to help others learn that the optimum human environment must include a rich, green colorful world of living plants. Man's survival, both culturally and physically, literally depend on restoring the required relationship between man and his natural environment.

The Horticultural Research Institute, sponsors of Dr. Ilitis' study, is a non-profit organization devoted to sponsoring and directing research to advance the science of environmental landscaping.

Fire Protection Funds Allocated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Agriculture has allocated $101,900 to Ohio for a year for fire protection in rural communities.

The state funding is part of $3.5 million available nationally for fiscal 1975, which ends June 30.

Rural areas and towns under 10,000 population which do not now have adequate fire protection can take advantage of the cost sharing program by applying before June 30. Communities will be selected based on vulnerability to fire, adequacy of existing protection and other factors.

Set Open House At Cedar Bog

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Cedar Bog State Memorial, site of a bog created as the glaciers of the Ice Age retreated over southern Champaign County leaving behind limestone chips, will hold a special open house May 3.

Visiting professors from Wittenberg and Urbana and staff members of the Ohio Historical Society will conduct the tours.

Modern Home Needs Ventilation

Modernizing with ventilation can help make the home's indoor environment more comfortable, cleaner and more efficient in use of air conditioning energy.

Mechanical ventilators supply controlled air movement to remove excess heat and other air pollutants effectively from living areas and attics and draw in fresh outside air.

"Use hoods over stoves and use exhaust fans in the kitchen, bath and laundry areas," advises the National Bureau of Standards in its "Home Energy Tips" bulletin.

"Exhaust quantities of heat and moisture to the outside during periods when these areas of the home are in use," the bulletin says. Such ventilation makes any home more comfortable in any season and eases the operating load on air conditioners.

Reducing excess heat from the attic, where temperatures can rise to a torrid 135 to 150 degrees, is another comfort-improving and energy-saving tip from the National Bureau of Standards bulletin. It points out that an exhaust fan "can greatly reduce attic temperatures and the flow of heat into living areas."

Vented range hoods, wall and ceiling exhaust fans, and powered attic space ventilators are certified in air delivery performance by the Home Ventilating Institute (HVI).

Using ratings of ventilators which bear the HVI label and following HVI air change recommendations, one can readily and reliably select a model which will perform the ventilating task according to recognized standards.

All HVI-certified fans have been tested under uniform procedures at Texas A & M University which are recognized in the Minimum Property Standards of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Modern ways of living generate air contaminants in greater volume and variety than past living patterns. Further, modern construction increases the need for ventilation, because tight construction reduces old-fashioned infiltration and leakage of air into the house.

Many attics lack optimum insulation, and even well insulated homes can benefit from thermostatically controlled ventilation which turns on and off according to need and helps prevent heat buildup.

"We Want to Wipe Out Cancer in Your Lifetime," is the wish of the American Cancer Society's 2.3 million volunteers as they conduct the 1975 ACS fund-raising and educational Crusade.

Excess heat is not the only pollutant removed by ventilation. In the kitchen, for example, cooking, baking, broiling and barbecuing load the room with large amounts of airborne grease, moisture, smoke and odors in addition to heat.

A freshly decorated or renovated kitchen will keep its beauty longer when properly ventilated. Stylings and finishes of range hoods and exhaust fans can contribute their own beauty to any decor plan.

Bathrooms, showers and laundry rooms generate heavy fogs of water vapor, which can cause discomfort, inconvenience, extra load on air conditioning, peeling of paint or wallpaper, and damage to metals.

Bath ventilators are styled to complement any decor and some also provide heat or light or both.

All room ventilators with the HVI label carry sound ratings which enable the selection of the level of quietness desired. They are rated in easy-to-compare "sones" — 3 sones is just half the loudness of 6 sones, for example.

To ventilate by HVI standards, use the following formulas to figure CFM (cubic feet per minute). For wall or ceiling fans, multiply floor area by 2 for kitchens, 1.07 for baths, 0.8 for family, laundry and other rooms. For range hoods, use a minimum of 40 CFM per lineal foot of range against wall, 50 CFM per lineal foot for island of peninsula; higher ratings are often chosen for additional flexibility or heavy use. For attics, multiply attic floor area by 0.7, plus 15 per cent for dark roofs.

Reds Seek To Spook Portuguese

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The two moderate parties that won last week's election are moving slowly and cautiously despite their massive victory.

The Communist party, which ran a poor third with less than 13 per cent of the vote, warned the first-place Socialists that an alliance with the "bourgeois" Popular Democratic party, which ran second, would put them in conflict with the radical military officers who dominate the ruling Revolutionary Council.

Socialist party chief Mario Soares, whose forces took more than 37 per cent of the vote in the election Friday for a constitutional assembly, said his party would join forces only with parties of the left. But he said it would not make "an exclusive alliance with the Portuguese Communist party."

Soares also said the Popular Democrats, a centrist party who got 26 per cent of the vote, should remain in the provisional government.

The six major parties agreed before the election to a draft constitution providing for four more years of military rule. But officials of both the Socialist and Popular Democratic parties said they felt the outcome of the election promised a genuine parliamentary democracy, although it would be some time arriving.

The radical officers running the country gave every advantage to the Communist party in the belief that the people were in favor of a "revolutionary process." They were stunned when the people, voting in record numbers, repudiated their policies and humiliated the Communists.

Build A Backsplash With Ceramic Tiles

A YOUNG homemaker installs a pregrouted ceramic tile backsplash in her kitchen. When all the sheets, held together by factory-applied white silicone rubber grout, are in place, she will seal the seams and edges with matching silicone material.

Tired of cleaning up those dingy backsplashes in your kitchen? Tucked between your wood or brightly colored cabinets and the easy-to-clean laminated countertops, "backsplashes" are aptly named. They seem to act as magnets for splashes — from frying, from dishwashing, from adding ketchup to Junior's snack — which often leave permanent stains on the painted or papered surface.

How about using real ceramic tile to perk up that backsplash? Ceramic tile comes in bright or neutral shades to complement your color scheme. Its clay body is strong and hard, and its fired-on glaze wipes clean with a damp sponge.

Modern technology has developed special easy-care grout materials to fill the joints between tiles. One of these is a white silicone rubber that is smooth, waterproof, non-cracking, and highly stain- and mildew-resistant — as easy to keep clean as the tile itself.

A do-it-yourself ceramic tile system combines the advantages of ceramic tile and silicone rubber grout with easy installation. The system consists of sheets of tiles held together by factory-applied silicone rubber grout. The system comes in packages of 5 one-square-foot sheets, and is available in pastel blue, autumn gold, avocado, gardenia, gold mist and buckwheat.

Installation, using a common mastic adhesive is quick and easy, as each sheet contains 9 four-inch tiles. A caulking gun loaded with a cartridge of the silicone grout material is used to seal the seams between sheets, corners, and edges (no more crumb-catching crevice at the back of the counter!).

Fitting is simple. The tiles can be cut apart along the grout lines. Nippers or pliers can be used to cut tiles to fit electrical outlets or plumbing connections. Tiles can be scored, with a glass cutter, and split, using a pencil or rod as a fulcrum, or using a cutting kit made especially for the system.

From Garage To Playroom

If you are looking for ways to expand your present living quarters, it's a safe bet that you have up to 20 per cent or more of your home devoted to storing garden tools, bicycles and the like.

Most people use their garages for storage and park their cars in the driveway. If you do, don't you think it will be better to use the space as a playroom, den or bedroom, and build a small shed to house the garden tools, etc.?

Converting an attached garage to living space is probably the simplest and least expensive way to add room to your house. Since the foundation, footings and exterior framing are already in place, all that needs to be done is to replace the garage door with a window, add lighting, interior walls, floor tile and heat.

Humans Are Dependent On Green Plants

Human alienation, depression, rising crime rates and many other ills of modern times are partially the result of isolating man from the natural environment from which he has evolved, according to noted botanist and ecologist, Dr. Hugh Iltis of the University of Wisconsin.

In research sponsored by the Horticultural Research Institute on the subject of man's need for living things, Dr. Iltis has confirmed that when the normal relationship between man and his total environment is altered, whether by technology or isolation, the natural cycle of interdependence of all living things is broken. As a result, humans in this isolated condition become unfulfilled psychologically. It is basic to man's hereditary needs that he enjoy the security provided him by his direct relationship with nature, particularly green colorful plants and other animals.

In a recent talk to the American Association of Nurserymen concerning this research, Dr. Iltis pointed out that while technology has advanced so rapidly, ecological concern has lagged too far behind to allow a balanced setting for man's survival. "Often," he said, "our attempts to create a natural balance are so small to affect the negative results of technological advance."

"Six geraniums in front of a fifty story building will not ease the crude lines or harshness of such a structure," he said. "What is needed is an offsetting effort of the same proportions as the technical advance itself."

In his talk before the nurserymen, Dr. Iltis urged them to spread the word of "Green Survival" and to help others learn that the optimum human environment must include a rich, green colorful world of living plants. Man's survival, both culturally and physically, literally depend on restoring the required relationship between man and his natural environment.

The Horticultural Research Institute, sponsors of Dr. Iltis' study, is a non-profit organization devoted to sponsoring and directing research to advance the science of environmental landscaping.

There was unanimous approval to Mrs. Bower's report of recommendations for Karen Jean Adams, a senior at Logan Elm High School and Evelyn Howard, a senior at Circleville. Announcement was made that Molly Hamrick had been selected as the club's delegate to Girls State.

Members who attended the recent annual Guest Breakfast of the Chillicothe Club were, Dr. Conrad, Maxine Hughes, Etha Mae Wolford and Mrs. Collins.

Greetings were sent to Geneva Ullman who has recently been dismissed from Berger Hospital.

A communication was read from the Bicentennial Committee and plans were made to cooperate with the anniversary celebration. Pictures and programs of early club years were on display.

Election resulted in the following being approved as officers for the 1975-76 club year: Louise Hill, president; Kathleen Hoffman, first vice president; Maxine Hughes, second vice president; Sally Dupler, recording secretary; Margaret Bower, corresponding secretary and Margaret Remy, treasurer.

Others present were Dorothy Winnell, Vergil Hanley, Mary Kennedy, Peggy Dean, JoAnn Brink, Patricia Wells, Marsha Hoffman, Marie Wilkin, Emma Curlett, Leora Sayre, and Mary Howard and Marguerite Clark, charter members.

JAPANESE DINNER

Chicken Teriyaki, rice, green beans, cucumber salad, orange compote, tea.

Chicken Teriyaki

It's marinated and broiled.
2 1/4 pound chicken, quartered
1/4 cup soy sauce
2 tablespoons honey
Clove garlic, minced
1 tablespoon minced fresh ginger
Cut, without severing, the joints between chicken wings and breast and between drumsticks and thighs; with a cleaver flatten chicken. In a shallow dish stir together the remaining ingredients; turn chicken, placed in a single layer, in marinade and let stand for several hours, turning a few times.

Broil chicken, skin side down, 8 to 10 inches from high heat until browned — about 20 minutes; turn skin side up; continue broiling until tender and skin looks charred — about 20 minutes. Baste with reserved marinade several times during broiling. Makes 2 large or 4 small servings.

MEATLESS SUPPER

Tunaburgers, potatoes, asparagus, salad, frosted brownies.

TUNABURGERS

7-ounce can solid light tuna, drained
Large egg, lightly beaten
Small onion, finely grated (2 tablespoons pulp and juice)
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper

Fine dry bread crumbs
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
Mix together the tuna, egg, onion, lemon juice and pepper; add enough crumbs (about 2 tablespoons) so mixture holds together. Shape into 8 patties. Roll in bread crumbs — about 2 tablespoons. In a skillet in the hot butter, slowly fry patties until hot through and browned, turning once. Makes 4 servings.

Gardenwood Club Elects Officers

Gardenwood Club held its April meeting recently at the Community Methodist Church. Co-hostesses were Marie Kazmierczak and Marilyn Spence.

The meeting was opened by Peg Scherer, president. Gardenwood Club will do the planting of flowers at the entrance of Forest Cemetery on May 21 at 9:30 a.m. Members are asked to attend and bring trowel and gloves.

Election of officers for 1975-1976 was held. Members of the nominating committee were Kay Sarchet, Ginnie Hritz and Marie Kazmierczak. Officers elected for the coming year are Marilyn Spence, president, Lynn Fisher, vice-president, Dorothy Geddis, secretary and Winnie Beckley, treasurer.

A workshop on arrangements, using live materials, was conducted by Arlene Davies.

Toasters and toaster-ovens come with retractable cords — a handy feature.

Plants Can Help Fight High Cost Of Living

Recent news stories about the rising cost of utilities is only one part of the story familiar to everyone in these days of spiralling prices and rampant inflation. We find government, industry and private individuals casting about for ways to fight the economic battle against inflation. In our haste we sometimes tend to overlook the simple, effective ways of conserving our resources and saving dollars. Yet nature has provided us with living gifts which not only bring beauty to our lives, but help us fight the battle of the purse.

According to the American Association of Nurserymen, proper use of plantings such as trees, shrubs, vines and ground covers can have a dramatic effect on heating and cooling of homes. In recent tests in South Dakota with two identical houses, one which was exposed and the other which was protected by various trees and shrubs, wind reduction during the winter months was as much as 71-per cent with a saving of 40-per cent in fuel consumption for heating the protected house.

In other tests conducted in less windy climates, the use of trees and shrubs as windbreaks accounted for a saving of 10-per cent in fuel bills over the entire winter. At today's prices, even 10-per cent reduction in home heating bills is a dramatic saving.

By providing windbreaks of evergreens or other plants on the northern and western sides of a house and leaving the southern side exposed, cold winter winds can be blocked and the sun from the south can help warm the home. Even a single row of evergreens will serve as a windbreak, but a double or triple row is even more effective.

In still another application, with a planting of deciduous trees on the south side of the home, the sun will provide warmth in the winter months when the leaves are gone, then will help cool the home and surrounding area during the hot summer months, thus reducing the need for air conditioning and electric consumption. Tests have shown that in properly shaded houses air-conditioners were needed as little as half as much as in exposed homes.

According to the American Association of Nurserymen, plant materials are considerably more effective in providing protection from weather than man-made devices such as walls or fences because their flexibility lets them reduce wind velocity and stabilize currents as opposed to solid walls which can blow down and which create turbulence on their leeward sides. Hedges or barrier plantings, they claim, provide maximum wind reduction because the wind passes through and the effects is to dampen or cancel the effect of downdrafts as well as reduce the force of chill winds.

On a related subject, certain types of clinging vines planted alongside the southern and western sun-exposed portions of a house can also result in considerable saving in cooling bills. Because the leaves of the vines absorb the sun's rays and allow a convection current to form behind them, they carry the heat up and away from the house.

These simple samples are just some of the ways that nature helps us fight economic pressures. When we consider that about a quarter of the energy consumption in this country,

This April some 2,300,000 volunteers will visit friends and local businessmen across the country to gather support for the American Cancer Society's 1975 educational and fundraising Crusade.

including electricity, coal and oil is for home heating, it is apparent that any savings in this area can be dramatic.

The benefits from proper plantings are abundant both from the aesthetic as well as the very practical standpoint. Money-saving plantings to reduce fuel bills not only serve the pocket book but help make life more enjoyable through the benefits of reduced noise, less pollution and more pleasant surroundings.

A landscape nursery or garden center can recommend the best variety of plant materials and proper arrangement to provide maximum weather protection and savings for each home year around.

Looking To Cut Heat Consumption? Here Are Helpful Household Hints

Homeowners everywhere are finding it will cost even more to heat their homes this winter, so the search is on more seriously than ever before for ways to reduce fuel consumption and lower fuel bills.

The 12 most practical ways to cut your fuel bills are listed here.

1. Insulate your home well. It's the most effective thing you can do. With adequate insulation, your home will require only about 50 per cent as much fuel as with no insulation.

To insulate an existing home, first pay attention to the ceiling, where heat loss is greatest. You can generally insulate the ceiling by laying thick but lightweight fiber glass blankets between joists in the attic floor.

If you already have some insulation, you can use an "add-on" insulation, which is made specifically to bring inadequate attic insulation up to today's standards. Consult an insulation contractor about insulating closed-in ceilings and walls.

Choose amounts of insulation by Resistance numbers, which tell how well insulation retards heat flow. In new homes, use at least R-19 (6½ inches thickness) in ceilings, R-11 (3½ inches to 4 inches thickness) in walls. Insulation in floors is needed for homes built over open crawl spaces.

2. Use storm windows or insulating glass. Double glass resists heat loss almost twice as well as single glass.

3. Use storm doors, keep them tightly latched.

4. Weatherstrip windows and doors to keep warm air in, cold air out.

5. Caulk cracks around the outside of window and door frames.

6. Call in a heating service man to clean and adjust the heating burner. He should also check balancing of the heat distribution system to make sure no room gets more heat than it needs.

7. Clean or replace furnace filters. Dirty filters may severely hinder movement of warm air, reducing furnace efficiency and wasting fuel.

8. Set the thermostat back at night, but only six or seven degrees. A bigger setback will require extra fuel for morning pick-up. Always set the thermostat back if you're going to be away for a weekend or longer.

9. Check the location of your thermostat. It should be on an inside wall four to five feet above floor level. Keep it away from heat sources such as a TV set or a lamp.

10. Turn off heat in rooms that aren't used. If you have zone thermostats to control your heating, consider keeping bedrooms at a lower temperature during the day. If you like to sleep with a window open, make sure the bedroom door is closed.

11. Install a humidifier. When relative humidity is high, you will be comfortable at a lower temperature.

12. Develop good heat conservation habits. Lock windows to pull sash tightly together. Close fireplace dampers except when a fire is burning. Close draperies at night, open them on sunny days.

Media Blasted In Moeller Arson Case

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — An attorney for Charles D. Moeller, one of 10 men charged in the bombing of a manufacturing plant in Connecticut, lashed out at the FBI and news media Monday for prejudicing the charges.

Attorney Dave Myers of Celina added that Moeller's trial will prove his innocence.

"Even before Charles Moeller's lawyer was privy to the indictment and its charges, FBI Director Clarence Kelly's selfaggrandizing words of prejudice and conclusion of crimes of Mr. Moeller were flooding the news media and air waves," said Myers.

Moeller of Cridersville, president of Ohio Decorative Products of Spencerville, the parent firm of Sponge Rubber Products which was destroyed by fire, was indicted by a federal grand jury in New Haven, Conn., on six arson-related counts as a result of alleged payment of $35,000 in company funds to David L. Bubar of Memphis, Tenn.

"Such publicity pronouncements are especially reprehensible when they further appear calculated to prejudice those who must ultimately decide the issues," Myers said.

"Mr. Moeller is entitled to the presumption of innocence of crimes charged and all governmental officials are sworn to uphold this cherished precept of law."

"The trial of this case in its proper form-the courtroom-hall establish Mr. Moeller's innocence."

Moeller is free on $35,000 bond. He is expected to appear before a U.S. magistrate this week for a hearing to determine whether he is named in the indictment.

Kenya Gets Grant

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The European Economic Community is to make a $6-million grant to Kenya to offset the effects of inflation aggravated by spiraling oil prices, it was announced here.

Kenya is one of 17 developing nations to benefit from a fund channeled through the U.N. Emergency Program. The EEC contributed about $73 million to the program, of which $30 million will remain in the U.N. Special Fund.

SOME practical ways to reduce fuel bills are: 1. insulating the home, especially the attic, 2. opening draperies on sunny days to let warming sunlight in, 3. cleaning or replacing the furnace filters to keep warm air flowing easily, 4. caulking around the outside of windows and door frames.

No-Wax Flooring Requires Proper Care

Two of the most popular time-saving innovations in housecleaning are the automatic dishwasher and the no-wax floor.

Washers eliminate many hours at the kitchen sink for today's housewife. No-wax floors have eliminated the need for waxing, stripping, and rewaxing — chores which all women thoroughly dislike.

To insure long-lasting service, from a no-wax floor, it's important to follow certain maintenance procedures.

If the floor is to keep its shiny appearance, it must be swept, sponge-mopped, and washed, just like any other resilient floor. Waxing is not necessary.

Put mats or throw rugs at entrances to keep grit and moisture from being tracked in, particularly if the floor is near a door to the outside. Do not use mats or rugs with foam-rubber backing; they can stain the floor.

To minimize indentations and shine-dulling scratches, use floor protectors on furniture legs.

Sweep or vacuum the floor often to remove loose dirt.

When spot cleaning is impractical due to widespread soiling, sponge-mop the floor. First, dip the mop into warm water and wring it out well. Push the sponge across the floor, pressing hard enough to loosen surface dirt.

Do one small area at a time, wringing out the sponge frequently to make sure that the dirt is picked up and not redistributed. Let dry.

No-wax flooring should be washed when it begins to look dull with dirt buildup that can't be removed by damp-mopping with plain water. It is preferable to have one sponge and bucket for rinsing.

A sponge-mop with a nylon scrubbing pad attached to the front edge is a good type to use for washing. Do not use steel wool, scouring pads or gritty cleansers on a no-wax floor as they can mar the surface.

The general-purpose detergent you select should state on the label that it is suitable for floors.

After mixing a cleaning solution according to label directions, apply the solution with a sponge-mop to a small area of the floor. At this point, rest a minute and let the detergent action loosen the dirt. Then go over the area again, pressing firmly to get the sponge into the embossed portions of the floor surface. Now, take up the cleaning solution on the floor with the sponge-mop well wrung out.

Rinse thoroughly with the "rinse-only" sponge-mop and clean with warm water. Do not leave any dirty water in the embossed areas.

Directions on some general-purpose detergents indicate that rinsing is not necessary. This may be true on some surfaces, but on floors the leftover detergent film is a notorious dirt catcher. Rinsing is a very important step in keeping no-wax floors shiny.

Everyday wear will begin eventually to reduce the shine of a no-wax surface. This can happen so gradually that it may not be noticeable immediately. To touch up the shine from time to time, a special finish is available from flooring stores.

Through an international exchange program, the American Cancer Society sponsors the ACS-Eleanor Roosevelt Cancer Fellowships. Continue this work by giving to the ACS during its April Crusade.

Financing Fixing Up

The homeowner who wants to make home improvements has a number of sources for financing, according to the National Home Improvement Council. Here's what's available:

Passbook loans: Most banks, savings institutions, and credit unions will allow a depositor to borrow up to 90 per cent on his savings.

Life insurance loans: When the homeowner has built up some cash value on his life insurance, it is possible for him to borrow most of that amount.

FHA Title 1: Special home improvement loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration are available from many banks and savings institutions.

Conventional loans: Interest rates on conventional, unsecured loans vary, but usually range from 10½ to 12½ per cent.

Contractor loans: These differ from the conventional loan only in that the contractor arranges the loan. It will cost more, but the convenience may be worth it.

Bank-based credit card: Although not recommended for larger projects, it is possible to charge home improvements projects to a bank-based credit card for up to 18 per cent interest per year.

Finance company loans: If the homeowner's credit is marginal or is notoriously "slow pay," he may find it easier to secure a loan through a finance company. However, credit is often as much as 20 and 22 per cent.

Mortgage loans: Generally speaking, second mortgages on a home should be avoided unless several thousand dollars is needed.

Rep. Miller Hears Of Gasification Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Clarence E. Miller, R-Ohio, has been told by the Energy Research and Development Administration that recommendations for alternate coal gasification plant locations will be made by Coalcon, a private contractor, this summer.

Miller received the word from George Fumich of the ERDA. Coalcon has received a $237 million contract for a demonstration coal gasification project. Gov. James A. Rhodes and others have recommended eastern Ohio as a site for the project.

New York Bay and the lower part of the Hudson River were first explored by the Florentine navigator Verrazano in 1524.

Looking To Cut Heat Consumption? Here Are Helpful Household Hints

Homeowners everywhere are finding it will cost even more to heat their homes this winter, so the search is on more seriously than ever before for ways to reduce fuel consumption and lower fuel bills.

The 12 most practical ways to cut your fuel bills are listed here.

1. Insulate your home well. It's the most effective thing you can do. With adequate insulation, your home will require only about 50 per cent as much fuel as with no insulation.

To insulate an existing home, first pay attention to the ceiling, where heat loss is greatest. You can generally insulate the ceiling, where heat loss is greatest. You can generally insulate the ceiling yourself by laying thick but lightweight fiber glass blankets between joists in the attic floor.

If you already have some insulation, you can use an "add-on" insulation, which is made specifically to bring inadequate attic insulation up to today's standards. Consult an insulation contractor about insulating closed-in ceilings and walls.

Choose amounts of insulation by Resistance numbers, which tell how well insulation retards heat flow. In new homes, use at least R-19 (6½ inches thickness) in ceilings, R-11 (3½ inches to 4 inches thickness) in walls. Insulation in floors is needed for homes built over open crawl spaces.

2. Use storm windows or insulating glass. Double glass resists heat loss almost twice as well as single glass.

3. Use storm doors, keep them tightly latched.

4. Weatherstrip windows and doors to keep warm air in, cold air out.

5. Caulk cracks around the outside of window and door frames.

6. Call in a heating service man to clean and adjust the heating burner. He should also check balancing of the heat distribution system to make sure no room gets more heat than it needs.

7. Clean or replace furnace filters. Dirty filters may severely hinder movement of warm air, reducing furnace efficiency and wasting fuel.

8. Set the thermostat back at night, but only six or seven degrees. A bigger setback will require extra fuel for morning pick-up. Always set the thermostat back if you're going to be away for a weekend or longer.

9. Check the location of your thermostat. It should be on an inside wall four to five feet above floor level. Keep it away from heat sources such as a TV set or a lamp.

10. Turn off heat in rooms that aren't used. If you have zone thermostats to control your heating, consider keeping bedrooms at a lower temperature during the day. If you like to sleep with a window open, make sure the bedroom door is closed.

11. Install a humidifier. When relative humidity is high, you will be comfortable at a lower temperature.

12. Develop good heat conservation habits. Lock windows to pull sash tightly together. Close fireplace dampers except when a fire is burning. Close draperies at night, open them on sunny days.

Media Blasted In Moeller Arson Case

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — An attorney for Charles D. Moeller, one of 10 men charged in the bombing of a manufacturing plant in Connecticut, lashed out at the FBI and news media Monday for prejudicing the charges.

Attorney Dave Myers of Celina added that Moeller's trial will prove his innocence.

"Even before Charles Moeller's lawyer was privy to the indictment and its charges, FBI Director Clarence Kelly's selfaggrandizing words of prejudice and conclusion of crimes of Mr. Moeller were flooding the news media and air waves," said Myers.

Moeller of Cridersville, president of Ohio Decorative Products of Spencerville, the parent firm of Sponge Rubber Products which was destroyed by fire, was indicted by a federal grand jury in New Haven, Conn., on six arson-related counts as a result of alleged payment of $35,000 in company funds to David L. Bubar of Memphis, Tenn.

"Such publicity pronouncements are especially reprehensible when they further appear calculated to prejudice those who must ultimately decide the issues," Myers said.

"Mr. Moeller is entitled to the presumption of innocence of crimes charged and all governmental officials are sworn to uphold this cherished precept of law."

"The trial of this case in its proper form-the courtroom-hall establish Mr. Moeller's innocence."

Moeller is free on $35,000 bond. He is expected to appear before a U.S. magistrate this week for a hearing to determine whether he is named in the indictment.

Kenya Gets Grant

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The European Economic Community is to make a $6-million grant to Kenya to offset the effects of inflation aggravated by spiraling oil prices, it was announced here.

Kenya is one of 17 developing nations to benefit from a fund channeled through the U.N. Emergency Program. The EEC contributed about $73 million to the program, of which $30 million will remain in the U.N. Special Fund.

SOME practical ways to reduce fuel bills are: 1. insulating the home, especially the attic, 2. opening draperies on sunny days to let warming sunlight in, 3. cleaning or replacing the furnace filters to keep warm air flowing easily, 4. caulking around the outside of windows and door frames.

No-Wax Flooring Requires Proper Care

Two of the most popular time-saving innovations in housecleaning are the automatic dishwasher and the no-wax floor.

Washers eliminate many hours at the kitchen sink for today's housewife. No-wax floors have eliminated the need for waxing, stripping, and rewaxing — chores which all women thoroughly dislike.

To insure long-lasting service, from a no-wax floor, it's important to follow certain maintenance procedures.

If the floor is to keep its shiny appearance, it must be swept, sponge-mopped, and washed, just like any other resilient floor. Waxing is not necessary.

Put mats or throw rugs at entrances to keep grit and moisture from being tracked in, particularly if the floor is near a door to the outside. Do not use mats or rugs with foamrubber backing; they can stain the floor.

To minimize indentations and shine-dulling scratches, use floor protectors on furniture legs.

Sweep or vacuum the floor often to remove loose dirt.

When spot cleaning is impractical due to widespread soiling, sponge-mop the floor. First, dip the mop into warm water and wring it out well. Push the sponge across the floor, pressing hard enough to loosen surface dirt.

Do one small area at a time, wringing out the sponge frequently to make sure that the dirt is picked up and not redistributed. Let dry.

No-wax flooring should be washed when it begins to look dull with dirt buildup that can't be removed by damp-mopping with plain water. It is preferable to have one sponge and bucket for rinsing.

A sponge-mop with a nylon scrubbing pad attached to the front edge is a good type to use for washing. Do not use steel wool, scouring pads or gritty cleansers on a no-wax floor as they can mar the surface.

The general-purpose detergent you select should state on the label that it is suitable for floors.

After mixing a cleaning solution according to label directions, apply the solution with a sponge-mop to a small area of the floor. At this point, rest a minute and let the detergent action loosen the dirt. Then go over the area again, pressing firmly to get the sponge into the embossed portions of the floor surface. Now, take up the cleaning solution on the floor with the sponge-mop well wrung out.

Rinse thoroughly with the "rinse-only" sponge-mop and clean with warm water. Do not leave any dirty water in the embossed areas.

Directions on some general-purpose detergents indicate that rinsing is not necessary. This may be true on some surfaces, but on floors the leftover detergent film is a notorious dirt catcher. Rinsing is a very important step in keeping no-wax floors shiny.

Everyday wear will begin eventually to reduce the shine of a no-wax surface. This can happen so gradually that it may not be noticeable immediately. To touch up the shine from time to time, a special finish is available from flooring stores.

Through an international exchange program, the American Cancer Society sponsors the ACS-Eleanor Roosevelt Cancer Fellowships. Continue this work by giving to the ACS during its April Crusade.

Financing Fixing Up

The homeowner who wants to make home improvements has a number of sources for financing, according to the National Home Improvement Council. Here's what's available:

Passbook loans: Most banks, savings institutions, and credit unions will allow a depositor to borrow up to 90 per cent on his savings.

Life insurance loans: When the homeowner has built up some cash value on his life insurance, it is possible for him to borrow most of that amount.

FHA Title 1: Special home improvement loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration are available from many banks and savings institutions.

Conventional loans: Interest rates on conventional, unsecured loans vary, but usually range from 10½ to 12½ per cent.

Contractor loans: These differ from the conventional loan only in that the contractor arranges the loan. It will cost more, but the convenience may be worth it.

Bank-based credit card: Although not recommended for larger projects, it is possible to charge home improvements projects to a bank-based credit card for up to 18 per cent interest per year.

Finance company loans: If the homeowner's credit is marginal or is notoriously "slow pay," he may find it easier to secure a loan through a finance company. However, credit is often as much as 20 and 22 per cent.

Mortgage loans: Generally speaking, second mortgages on a home should be avoided unless several thousand dollars is needed.

Add A Room The Thrifty Way

MORE THAN $2 billion is expected to be spent this year by homeowners on add-a-room projects. At an average cost of $2,400, it's still cheaper than moving. Whether you plan to do-it-yourself or hire a professional contractor, using Mod 24 construction methods, which call for spacing the studs at 24 inches on center instead of 16 inches, can substantially reduce labor and material costs.

About one million American families are expected to add rooms to their homes this year at a cost in excess of $2 billion.

Adding a room costs $2,400 on the average. If you are one of those million considering such a project, remember that it will probably cost a good deal more to have the work done by a professional. On the other hand, a do-it-yourselfer can shave quite a bit from the average price — in the cost of labor alone.

Whichever route you choose, plan the project carefully. The Western Wood Products Association suggests you consider Mod 24 construction techniques, whether you plan to hire a contractor or to do the work yourself.

Mod 24 calls for spacing the 2 x 4 floor joists, wall studs and roof trusses that comprise the wood framing at 24 inches on center instead of the time-honored 16 inches. With Mod 24, less labor, time and lumber are used. But the framing is entirely adequate in strength.

Another point to consider is the grade of framing lumber that will be used. Since the framing is going to be inside the walls where no one can see it, appearance isn't a factor. Look into the possibility of using less expensive 2 x 4s of western wood that will still produce structurally sound framing acceptable to the FHA and VA when used in accordance with the FHA's Minimum Property Standards.

The Mod 24 system has other cost-cutting advantages. When windows are designed to fit the modules of the system, use of jack studs and cripples is reduced. To facilitate insulating, the industry has devised 24-inch wide insulation butts that fit snugly between the framing members. Or if you use blown-in insulation, there are less cavities to fill.

Whether you decide to do-it-yourself or hire a contractor, using the various grades of western framing lumber in conjunction with Mod 24 will assure you of a room addition that is well built at a lower cost.

Drop Ceiling Gives Room Lift

Dropping the ceiling. That's what many smart decorators are doing to revitalize a room.

The ceiling is not as inconspicuous as one might think. A poor-looking ceiling will stick out like a sore thumb, no matter how great the rest of the room is put together.

Dropping the ceiling with acoustical tiles will give it an even, clean surface that will need little or no care. It can also help to soundproof the room. And it's an inexpensive method for covering cracked, rough or stained ceilings yourself!

The standard method for installation on rough, uneven ceilings involves nailing up wood furring strips first (strips of wood about 1½" wide by ¾" thick), then stapling the tiles to these. Some remodelers use a new type of metal furring.

Whatever the method, installation is fairly easy, and there is a wide variety of fashionable tiles on the market to fit into any room decor.

Antiques Mix With Many Sets

You've just inherited Great Aunt Hattie's Victorian love seat, but your home is completely modern.

Don't panic. Antiques have a knack for complementing other periods of decor.

A little shuffling of the furniture, a bit of new upholstery or a slip cover, and an antique looks right at home in the starkest modern house.

NOSTALGIA for those happy tropical vacations or an Acapulco honeymoon is evoked by this bold floral wallcovering. Mexican paper flowers inspired this bright design which turns a dark alcove into a happy game area for would-be Bobby Fischers.

Happy Days Are Here Again

Nostalgia is the craze of the day — in movies, plays, songs, even home furnishings. Psychiatrists attribute the step back into time as a desire to relive the happier times, whether those days were truly better or simply a figment of memory.

Home furnishings prove the wish to be more secure as interior designers and their clients agree on relaxing, softly colorful, even gay surroundings. Wall-coverings are especially important as they greet a weary worker coming home, let a homemaker unwind before dinner and cause a round of smiles and laughs as a group gathers in the family room. Painted walls just won't do it.

Nostalgia is the longing for the things of the past, noted when the first family member goes away. Not too surprisingly, the absent one misses the wall-covering in her room, the remembrance of happy, childhood days.

To the home designer, a variety of wallcoverings, offers an opportunity to change the appearance of a hallway or any room in the house without investing in expensive furniture. The wallcovering, surrounding the chic, sophisticated furnishings, adds the soft, subtle touch, blending the colors and the textures of the room into a new look. If the wallpaper is destined for a room where fingerprints and scuff marks are regular happenings, a vinyl paper takes to a dampened cloth or sponge and the marks disappear almost magically. No strong solutions or soaps are required.

Nostalgia again enters the world of home furnishings when mother and daughter get together to talk about daughter's first home, whether she's planning marriage or a job in a distant city. Daughter probably is looking for some of her earlier life — touches of the furnishings of her room and the rest of the house — and the very modern conveniences of today's world. She easily could select some of her old colors but in a new flocced or striped or combination wallpaper. In her kitchen, no one will blink an eye if she uses the same colors as in her mother's kitchen, wallcovering and all.

Women involved in the do-it-yourself thing are doing it themselves when it comes to redesigning their rooms, spending as little money as possible since the days of inflation are affecting everyone. The same women are "doing" their own hair and sewing their own fashions — for fun and saving money. These "home decorators" are adding happy touches to their rooms. Such as plants (both hanging and standing), new picture groupings including unusual mirrors, and colorful occasional furniture from unfinished furniture shops.

Wallpapers fit nicely into these rooms, bringing a soft, restful and nostalgic touch to the home, no matter how young or old the occupants. If the wallcovering is prepeasted, many home designers are doing it themselves — it's that easy. If baths and kitchens have not been papered in the past, these designing men and women are papering for a brand new book, usually with a pattern that's nostalgic and reminiscent of their yesteryears.

Everything's nostalgia today, including the home. And everyone's glad about the happy feeling it gives.

Just A Little Care Goes Long Way With Cookware

Creative cooking without problem cleanups is easier now with all the new nonstick cookware available. And with just a little care, those time-saving pan coatings will keep their good looks and their nonstick qualities.

Condition your skillets and your range-top pans more often than those used for baking. This means pouring a little cooking oil on the pan's surface to prevent drying and deep scratching. Rinse the oil and wipe the pan with a paper towel before using.

If you prefer, foods may be cooked without fat at slightly lower temperatures. And remember, minor scratches may look a little unsightly but they won't harm the pan's nonstick qualities.

It's most important to protect your nonstick coated pans by washing them thoroughly, especially after a few conditionings, because a thin, almost invisible layer of grease and food clings to your pans and destroys their effectiveness.

A good tip to preserve your nonstick cookware is to use only smooth-edged metal spoons. The coating on bakeware is smoother and even less resistant than range-top ware, so use specially coated or wooden utensils.

It's best to stay away from harsh metal scouring pads and abrasive cleaning powders which can dull and damage your pan. Also, never use sharp-edged kitchen tools like metal mashers, rotary beaters or forks and knives.

A Clean Door Makes Great First Impression

Since everyone sees your home for the first time from the outside, the right impression can start at your doorstep.

If you have children, your front doorknob has probably been grabbed often by muddy hands. Or your doorknocker may have lost its luster where sticky fingers coated it, and your doorbell, with a layer of grease. Also, you may not have noticed how everyday dirt has dulled the painted surfaces on the front of your home.

Unsightly dirt will disappear with good spray cleaner and a wipe with a paper towel or a soft cloth.

A swish with a pliant sponge will even collect the grime from the corners of your window box.

While you're at it, spray and wipe the painted doorframe. You might decide that you don't really need to repaint it this year after all.

If you try these easy suggestions before your next guest arrives, your home will look great from the very first step.

Important Information to Help Aid You in Buying Your Home

1. Heating, Cooling, and Insulation $$$

First, all the insulation we can get in a home is still not enough, and it is up to the dealer to get all the insulation available, and with the high cost of heating fuels and electric, be sure to get proof of insulation in your home. Also, Fome Core is very important on any mobile home. Ask the people at Kenny's about Fome Core. Also, in setting doublewides, insulation between the two halves is very important.

2. Foundations and Anchors

With the large size homes on the market today, just blocks on top soil are not sufficient, and the tornado and wind storms that we have is why every home should be anchored down. This is an expensive option at other places. Consider this while pricing. Why take a chance on your family's safety? That's why at Kenny's all new homes sold include concrete foundations and anchored down.

It's Spring Cleaning!

Time to get out those Winter "packed-aways" and let us clean and press 'em for Spring-Summer!

RAIN PROOFING

RADCLIFFE CLEANERS

NOSTALGIA for those happy tropical vacations or an Acapulco honeymoon is evoked by this bold floral wallcovering. Mexican paper flowers inspired this bright design which turns a dark alcove into a happy game area for would-be Bobby Fischers.

Happy Days Are Here Again

Nostalgia is the craze of the day — in movies, plays, songs, even home furnishings. Psychiatrists attribute the step back into time as a desire to relive the happier times, whether those days were truly better or simply a figment of memory.

Home furnishings prove the wish to be more secure as interior designers and their clients agree on relaxing, softly colorful, even gay surroundings. Wall-coverings are especially important as they greet a weary worker coming home, let a homemaker unwind before dinner and cause a round of smiles and laughs as a group gathers in the family room. Painted walls just won't do it.

Nostalgia is the longing for the things of the past, noted when the first family member goes away. Not too surprisingly, the absent one misses the wall-covering in her room, the remembrance of happy, childhood days.

To the home designer, a variety of wallcoverings, offers an opportunity to change the appearance of a hallway or any room in the house without investing in expensive furniture. The wallcovering, surrounding the chic, sophisticated furnishings, adds the soft, subtle touch, blending the colors and the textures of the room into a new look. If the wallpaper is destined for a room where fingerprints and scuff marks are regular happenings, a vinyl paper takes to a dampened cloth or sponge and the marks disappear almost magically. No strong solutions or soaps are required.

Nostalgia again enters the world of home furnishings when mother and daughter get together to talk about daughter's first home, whether she's planning marriage or a job in a distant city. Daughter probably is looking for some of her earlier life — touches of the furnishings of her room and the rest of the house — and the very modern conveniences of today's world. She easily could select some of her old colors but in a new flocked or striped or combination wallpaper. In her kitchen, no one will blink an eye if she uses the same colors as in her mother's kitchen, wallcovering and all.

Women involved in the do-it-yourself thing are doing it themselves when it comes to redesigning their rooms, spending as little money as possible since the days of inflation are affecting everyone. The same women are "doing" their own hair and sewing their own fashions — for fun and saving money. These "home decorators" are adding happy touches to their rooms. Such as plants (both hanging and standing), new picture groupings including unusual mirrors, and colorful occasional furniture from unfinished furniture shops.

Wallpapers fit nicely into these rooms, bringing a soft, restful and nostalgic touch to the home, no matter how young or old the occupants. If the wallcovering is prepast, many home designers are doing it themselves — it's that easy. If baths and kitchens have not been papered in the past, these designing men and women are papering for a brand new book, usually with a pattern that's nostalgic and reminiscent of their yesteryears.

Everything's nostalgia today, including the home. And everyone's glad about the happy feeling it gives.

Don't Be Bugged By Pesky Visitors

Like the FBI's "Most Wanted List," the homemaker of today has another list — the Ten Most Unwanted — those household pests that invade the home without invitation.

According to the National Pest Control Association, a non-profit organization of pest control companies that specialize in controlling rodents and insects in and around structures, these unwelcome guests do an estimated $4.5 billion in damage every year. Even worse, many household pests actually endanger your family's health.

Unfortunately, even the cleanest house on the block can be, and often is, visited by unwanted pests. Household pests are not strictly regional or seasonal. Modern climate control enables pests to exist and multiply indoors all year. Rodent problems, however, increase in autumn when low temperatures drive rats and mice inside seeking food and shelter. Roaches hitchhike into homes in grocery bags.

Other insects ride in on shoes or clothes. Clearly, pest control is a year-round job no matter where you live. Effective pest control is more than a grocery store spray, a fly swatter, and a mouse trap. The fundamental problem: pests thrive on food, warmth and water — three elements that would make your home livable.

Since you cannot eliminate these basic appeals, concentrate on preventive measures:

Frequently clean possible pest hiding places and breeding spots — cracks and crevices in floors, baseboards, vents, under staircases, etc.

Dispose of all debris and garbage daily.

Screen outside doors and windows and close outside cracks and crevices where pests can enter your home.

Buy only small quantities of food you seldom use. Store food in tight containers which insects cannot invade.

Families Can Help Conserve U.S. Natural Resources

Energy to run a home costs more today than ever before.

Even more important is the fact that once abundant supplies have given way to shortages and a struggle to maintain and develop adequate fuel sources.

But the energy crisis of 1974 is not just a problem for industry and government to solve. It is a situation in which all Americans can help provide a solution.

The wise use and conservation of energy is an attainable and worthwhile goal for the family, as well as the corporation.

The most effective short term way to control rising costs and maintain adequate supply for residential users is to use energy in the most efficient manner.

According to the American Gas Association, the top energy savers in the home are: (1) 24-hour thermostat set back to 68 degrees F during the cold months (save up to 15 per cent on your heating costs). (2) Adequate ceiling insulation (if you have no ceiling insulation and install 6 inches, you should save up to 17 per cent of your heating and cooling costs and your pay

Wild Chase Reported

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Two police cars raced down a side street in pursuit of a fleeing gunman and crashed into a third police car at an intersection.

An off-duty officer joined the chase but his car was battered by a paddy wagon.

The fleeing man stopped his car at a police roadblock only to have it rammed from behind by another police car.

"It would have been worth filming for a movie or something," mused Sgt. D. V. Lee after the wild chase through downtown Atlanta early Sunday.

Lee said it began at a motel when a man fired several shots at a policeman and a security guard, wounded a desk clerk in the shoulder and was shot in the knee as he fled.

The man sped off in a car, beginning the chase which left seven vehicles damaged but no one seriously hurt.

When it ended, Everett Eugene Hill, 23, of Miami, Fla., was charged with aggravated assault, armed robbery and numerous traffic violations, police said.

THE TEN most unwanted household pests according to the National Pest Control Assn. are: 1. cockroach, 2. house mouse, 3. Norway rat, 4. subterranean termite, 5. house ant, 6. carpenter ant, 7. flea, 8. brown dog tick, 9. spider, 10. silverfish.

Clean up crumbs and spilled foods. Inspect incoming grocery bags and soft drink containers. Pay particular attention to produce packages.

If you use pesticides, remember: All pesticides are potentially harmful if misused.

Purchase only pesticides bearing Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) registration numbers and registered for the use which you intend for it. These products are effective, safe and not harmful to the environment if used as directed.

Read label before you buy pesticides. Follow directions. Don't use insecticides registered for cockroaches on your garden insects, for example.

Store unused pesticides where children cannot reach them. Dispose of properly and carefully.

When you need professional help, call in an expert. Pest Control professionals receive specialized training to solve your pest problems safely within the context of your home and natural environment.

Swine Waste Treatment Eyed

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Swine wastes can be treated automatically with a minimum of odor nuisance and without water pollution, Professor E. Paul Taiganides of the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center reported recently.

His conclusion presented to a livestock waste symposium was based on a three-year research study.

Under the project which experimented with 500 pigs, manure is flushed from the confinement unit and the flushed wastewater is pumped over a screen which separates solids from liquids. The solids are aerobically digested, treated and stored before final disposal on agriculturally productive land. Liquids are eventually sent into a settling tank.

Doug McGlone was the winning pitcher and Randy Thomas delivered the big hit as Circleville downed Bexley, 7-3, Monday on the local diamond.

Brent Mancini started on the hill and worked two innings for the Tigers, giving up three runs, two hits, six walks and striking out two.

Biff Bumgarner hurled one inning, striking out two without giving up a hit or a walk.

McGlone followed and was on the hill for three innings. He gave up two hits, fanned six and didn't issue a free pass. Phil Roll hurled hitless ball in the seventh and whiffed two hitters.

Joe Hill opened on the mound for Bexley and suffered the loss as the Tigers collected 11 hits.

Colonels Wrap Up Loop Crown

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Louie Dampier is about ready to be measured for one of those rings the American Basketball Association presents to its championship team.

"We can take it all," Dampier predicted Monday night while the rest of the Kentucky Colonels sipped champagne after demoralizing St. Louis 123-103 to wrap up the Eastern Division playoffs four games to one.

The victory puts the Colonels into the championship round against the winner of the Indiana-Denver series, which Indiana leads 3-2. The Pacers and Nuggets tangle again tonight in Indianapolis.

Dampier, who has been with the Colonels since they joined the ABA, pointed out his team has been in the finals twice before and lost. "But I think if we keep playing as well as we have, it's going to be a different story. I think I may get that ring this year."

His choice of opponents?
"If we play Denver, it would be a matchup of two first-place teams," he said. "But we have a natural rivalry with Indiana and it would really draw out the fans."

There were 8,726 on hand when the Colonels went to work on St. Louis, which trailed by 11 points at intermission and completely fell apart in the fourth quarter.

Manager Billy Martin of the Texas Rangers made 33 hits in 28 World Series games over five years for a .333 Series batting average.

A HELPING HAND—The number five green at Upper Lansdowne Golf Course was repaired yesterday thanks to assistance from greenskeepers of the Lyons Den Golf Club at Canal Fulton. The green was damaged earlier this month when a 4-wheel drive vehicle was driven across it. The damaged turf was removed from the green and replaced with good sod taken from the edge of the green. The damaged sod was then placed on the edge where it will not interfere with putting. It will be treated with nitrate of potash to induce root growth. Driving the 160 miles from Canal Fulton to assist Lansdowne owner Don Collins with the repair were: L. McElwee, Frank Wakefield, Carl and Pam Lyons, Bob William, Denny Getz and Bill and Bette Lyons Jr.

Lawrence O'Brien NBA Chief

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association has returned to the political ranks to pick a new commissioner, former Democratic National Committee Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien.

O'Brien, who also served as Postmaster General under President Lyndon Johnson, has been elected unanimously to replace retiring Commissioner Walter Kennedy, The Associated Press learned Monday.

The announcement of O'Brien's selection is expected to be made by the league Wednesday.

In Springfield, Mass., where he was elected president of the Basketball Hall of Fame, Kennedy refused to comment Monday night on O'Brien's appointment.

"The (NBA) selection committee told me last Friday that they would continue to screen candidates. And they meet this week, probably on Wednesday," Kennedy said.

"Until the selection committee has advised me of any agreement for a new commissioner, I don't want to comment on speculation ... However, this isn't the first time Larry O'Brien's name has come up."

Kennedy, once mayor of Stamford, Conn., has been commissioner since 1963. In 1973, he announced he would retire when his contract expires this summer, giving the selection commission time for a two-year search for his replacement.

O'Brien, 57, is a native of Springfield, Mass., and has been active in Democratic politics and election campaigns most of his life. He directed John F. Kennedy's Senate campaigns in 1952 and 1958 and his 1960 presidential campaign, after which he became Democratic National Committee chairman.

From 1961 to 1965, he was special assistant for congressional relations to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, then served for three years as Postmaster General.

He became Democratic chairman again in 1968, serving until succeeded by Jean Westwood in 1972. It was his office at the Watergate office building in Washington that was the target of the Watergate burglars in June 1972.

Although he graduated from Northeastern Law School, he has never practiced law. But his political and legal background are believed to have been two of the reasons he was selected. The NBA faces an antitrust lawsuit by the American Basketball Association, and the NBA Players Association has a suit against the owners challenging the reserve clause.

O'Brien's selection means that Simon Gourdine, the NBA's deputy commissioner and the highest ranking black sports executive in the country, was bypassed for the job.

Goaldiggers Trip Saginaw Gears, 8-5

Latest In Appliances: The New Energy Savers

When the homeowner decides to improve his home he will find some surprising innovations in appliances. One energy-saving refrigerator-freezer uses about a third less electricity than other models not equipped with its special thermostatically controlled motor.

While it is true that the amount of electricity consumed by the refrigerator each operating hour is a modest amount, it's also true that the amount of electricity consumed 24 hours around the clock for 365 days adds up to a substantial figure.

The higher price tags on these models are offset by operating savings over a long period of time.

Gas ranges equipped with mini-pilots or hypodermic pilots, named after the very fine hollow hypodermic needle, consume much less gas than older models. Also, heat from pilot lights makes the house that much warmer, requiring less output from the central heating system.

There are dramatic developments in the production of "high-efficiency" air conditioning units, available in capacities ranging from 5,500 to 27,000 BTUs (British Thermal Units). Basically, high-efficiency air conditioning is a term applied to air conditioners which produce more cooling per watt of electricity consumed than standard air conditioners of the same capacity.

Cooling is also measured in BTUs. The ratio of BTUs per watt is called the Energy Efficiency Ratio. Air conditioners which produce eight or more BTUs of cooling per watt are considered to be high-efficiency models. These units cost less to operate and help conserve power.

A HELPING HAND—The number five green at Upper Lansdowne Golf Course was repaired yesterday thanks to assistance from greenskeepers of the Lyons Den Golf Club at Canal Fulton. The green was damaged earlier this month when a 4-wheel drive vehicle was driven across it. The damaged turf was removed from the green and replaced with good sod taken from the edge of the green. The damaged sod was then placed on the edge where it will not interfere with putting. It will be treated with nitrate of potash to induce root growth. Driving the 160 miles from Canal Fulton to assist Lansdowne owner Don Collins with the repair were: L. McElwee, Frank Wakefield, Carl and Pam Lyons, Bob William, Denny Getz and Bill and Bette Lyons Jr.

Lawrence O'Brien NBA Chief

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association has returned to the political ranks to pick a new commissioner, former Democratic National Committee Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien.

O'Brien, who also served as Postmaster General under President Lyndon Johnson, has been elected unanimously to replace retiring Commissioner Walter Kennedy, The Associated Press learned Monday.

The announcement of O'Brien's selection is expected to be made by the league Wednesday.

In Springfield, Mass., where he was elected president of the Basketball Hall of Fame, Kennedy refused to comment Monday night on O'Brien's appointment.

Corner Your Imagination With These Smart Ideas

Once you've placed your major pieces of furniture, what do you do with the left-over spaces to make them work for you? Most of us find it almost impossible to visualize how to make effective use of the odd spaces such as corners, a technique that professional interior designers seem so adept at handling.

One of the devices for making these blank spots more functional is turning them into areas for specific activities. For example, designer Peggy Walker took an unused, and seemingly unusable, corner in a family room and turned it into an area for quiet reading or listening to music.

It was done with several simple and inexpensive tricks: some minimal carpentry and a rug to define the area and establish a dramatic color scheme. An uncomplicated plywood construction that could easily be a do-it-yourself project frames the window to form a window seat and a storage area. Dimensions were adjusted to fit perfectly around an inexpensive chest of drawers, eliminating fancy and difficult cabinetry but providing the necessary stowaway space for records and other miscellany.

A vividly colored Danish rya rug instantly established the perimeters of a special area. Its flowing abstract design in golds and reds formed the basis for the rest of the color scheme. The walls, seat cushion and the extra cube for seating or eating were painted in the same warm gold hue. A clear tomato red tone, picked up from the design, runs in a stripe up the wall to create a sharp and exciting contrast. The same red was echoed in other accessories as well, to tie the scheme together.

The long shaggy pile rug creates a warm and comfortable environment for the corner whether it is used for decorating approach can be used even in a room with broadloom simply by putting a rug over it, where desired, to create a visual focal point.

Although this area rug was laid directly on the floor, the same

Residents Ignore Health Findings

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A report indicating that three northern Ohio communities with polyvinyl chloride plants have excessive birth defect rates created scarcely a stir among their residents.

"It hasn't raised any clamor," said Dr. Frank Veroni, Ashtabula health commissioner.

"I don't know of anyone who has commented about it publicly other than the mayor," said Avon Lake's pollution officer, Daniel Straka.

Painesville Health Commissioner Wayne Ruuska said there was "no reaction from residents here."

Ashtabula, Avon Lake and Painesville, all near Lake Erie, were the focus of a study by Dr. Peter F. Infante of the Ohio Department of Health.

Infante's findings, presented last month at a conference on occupational carcinogenesis held by the New York Academy of Sciences, showed that birth defect rates in the communities ranged as high as twice the state norm.

The report listed Ashtabula with 17 birth defects per 1,000 live births, Painesville with 18 per 1,000 and Avon Lake with just over 20 per 1,000.

The state average was listed as 10.14 malformations per 1,000 live births. B.F. Goodrich, whose Avon Lake facility opened in 1946, issued a statement pointing to the "numerous shortcomings" of the study.

The company said Infante based his conclusions solely on information from birth certificates.

Moreover, Goodrich said, Infante had not determined whether any women involved had ever been exposed to vinyl chloride — the gas used in making polyvinyl chloride — or whether there was any vinyl chloride in the ambient air in the communities.

"We've looked into this and we haven't found anything to bear out Infante's report," said Cleveland Lane, manager for divisional services and corporate communications at the Goodrich plant.

Lane said that in 1973 three workers at Goodrich's polyvinyl chloride plant in Louisville, Ky. — one of five the company operates — were found to have died from a rare form of liver cancer.

He said the deaths were reported to federal and state officials and "since then new standards for exposure have been instituted."

But there is no scientific evidence upholding a link between vinyl chloride and birth defects, Lane said. Infante agrees. Although he purposely chose communities with polyvinyl chloride plants for his study, he said, he can't validly draw any conclusions between that and his findings.

"The thing is there is an excess of birth defects in those areas," he said. "But whether it's related to the polyvinyl chloride factories or not, I

BCI Chief Dismissed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Akron native and former FBI agent has been named acting superintendent of the Ohio Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation at London.

Atty. Gen. William J. Brown announced Monday the appointment of Jack McCormick, 32, after disclosing that E. Eugene Starrett, 43, had been fired as superintendent Friday.

Brown asked the Ohio Highway Patrol to look into "allegations of improprieties" against Starrett, who had headed the bureau since March, 1973.

A spokesman in the attorney general's office said state property was involved, but probably less than $1,000 worth. Starrett earned $23,754 a year at the Madison County facility. McCormick has been assistant superintendent since July, 1973, at a salary of $19,900 records showed.

Flood Insurance Deadline Nears

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — With the deadline for application only two months away, only about 23 per cent of Ohio's flood-prone municipalities have applied for federal flood insurance eligibility.

The Ohio Insurance Institute has issued a warning to 437 Ohio communities that they must apply by July 1 to qualify under the Federal Disaster Act of 1973.

Without eligibility, property owners cannot obtain flood insurance, which is not included in standard property insurance coverage.

And without the insurance, property owners will find it difficult to get financing for construction. Loans from the government or from private institutions regulated by the federal government cannot be issued without flood coverage.

A spokesman for the institute said some communities have hesitated to apply because it gives some federal control over land-use zoning in flood hazard areas.

Special zoning restrictions in the flood areas also conflict with state law in some areas dealing with uniform zoning of unincorporated land. A bill now in the General Assembly, sponsored by Rep. Frederick H. Deering, D-84 Monroeville, would change those laws to allow flood zoning.

"We are aware of the problems involved and reasons that some areas have not made applications," said John C. Winchell, executive director of the institute. "But application by hazard areas is required by the Federal Disaster Act."

"Careful consideration now will allow individual problems to be resolved and the program instituted in an orderly fashion before the cut-off date. This will also insure that some form of flood relief is available in these known hazard areas," he said.

The institute said that once eligibility is granted, property owners can decide for themselves if they want flood insurance.

"But the eligibility must come first," the institute said. "Thus, it is particularly important that areas with known hazards apply for the program so that its citizens will have access to protection."

The institute said 133 municipalities have applied for eligibility.

In 1974, the insurance group said,

500,000 flood insurance policies with a face value of $12 billion were in force. The figure represents a 60 per cent increase over policies in 1973.

Once a community is declared eligible, insurance is available at subsidized rates. On residential structures, the rate is 25 cents per $100 coverage on the structure and 35 cents per $100 coverage on contents.

He said the deaths were reported to federal and state officials and "since then new standards for exposure have been instituted."

But there is no scientific evidence upholding a link between vinyl chloride and birth defects, Lane said.

Infante agrees. Although he purposely chose communities with polyvinyl chloride plants for his study, he said, he can't validly draw any conclusions between that and his findings.

"The thing is there is an excess of birth defects in those areas," he said. "But whether it's related to the polyvinyl chloride factories or not, I can't say."

He said he would continue his investigation, starting with a study of population data such as where the parents of children with birth defects lived and worked.

BCI Chief Dismissed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Akron native and former FBI agent has been named acting superintendent of the Ohio Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation at London.

Atty. Gen. William J. Brown announced Monday the appointment of Jack McCormick, 32, after disclosing that E. Eugene Starrett, 43, had been fired as superintendent Friday.

Brown asked the Ohio Highway Patrol to look into "allegations of improprieties" against Starrett, who had headed the bureau since March, 1973.

A spokesman in the attorney general's office said state property was involved, but probably less than $1,000 worth. Starrett earned $23,754 a year at the Madison County facility.

McCormick has been assistant superintendent since July, 1973, at a salary of $19,900 records showed.

Rain Raises North Dakota Flood Fears

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Rain splashed into the northcentral section of the country from Montana to Wisconsin today and aggravated a threat of serious flooding in North Dakota.

The Minot City Council warned residents of that north-central North Dakota city's flood plain to be ready to evacuate on two hours' notice. More rain in the Souris and Des Lacs river basins increased the prospect of severe flooding there.

The rain was mixed with snow in parts of Montana, Wyoming and northeastern Minnesota. An inch of snow whitened Lander, Wyo., during the night. Stockmen's advisories were issued for northeastern Wyoming, western North Dakota and northern and eastern Montana.

Scattered thundershowers ranged from Ohio into Virginia and also drenched parts of southern Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi. Three inches of rain soaked San Antonio, Tex., through Monday.

Clear or partly cloudy skies favored most of the country outside the north-central region and interior sections of the Southeast.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 25 at Concord and Lebanon, N.H.; Ely, Nev., and Evanston, Wyo., to 78 at Brownsville, Tex., and Key West, Fla.

Forecast

NORTHWEST INLAND, WEST LAKE SHORE—
Partly cloudy tonight. Lows tonight in the low to mid 40s. Partly cloudy Wednesday with a chance of showers. Highs in the low to mid 60s. Chance of rain 10 per cent tonight and 40 per cent Wednesday.

WEST CENTRAL, CENTRAL, SOUTHWEST—
Partly cloudy tonight, low in the upper 40s and low 50s. Partly cloudy Wednesday with a chance of showers. Highs in the low to mid 70s. Chance of rain 10 per cent tonight, 40 per cent Wednesday.

EAST CENTRAL, SOUTHEAST
Clear tonight. Lows in the upper 40s and low 50s. Partly cloudy Wednesday with a chance of afternoon showers. Highs in the low to mid 70s. Chance of rain 20 per cent tonight and 40 per cent Wednesday.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Mostly sunny skies were expected to cover Ohio today, with the exception of the eastern portions, where cloudiness was forecast to stay on.

The eastern sections were also expected to receive showers, mainly in the morning.

High temperatures were expected to reach the 70s in the south and central sections of the state, while readings in the northern areas were forecast in the 50s and low 60s.

Wednesday's highs are expected to range from the 60s along Lake Erie to the 70s along the Ohio River.

There was little chance of rain tonight and only a slight chance on Wednesday.

Showers were general over Ohio Monday, with amounts ranging from two-tenths to four-tenths inches. Heavier amounts fell near the Ohio River.

High temperatures varied across the state, with the Cincinnati area reporting readings in the mid 70s and Mansfield recording a high of 45 degrees.

Early this morning, temperatures were in the 40s in the north and in the 50s in the south.

New Gonorrhea Vaccine Works

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A University of Pittsburgh scientist has reported the development of a vaccine which protected human volunteers against gonorrhea, the nation's most common form of venereal disease.

Dr. Charles C. Brinton announced the results of initial trials Monday at a meeting of the American Society for Microbiology in New York. He noted that it could take another two years of tests before the substance becomes publicly available.

The same serum can serve as the basis for a simple blood test to detect persons who have been exposed to the disease, Brinton said.

Bicentennial Administration Adopts 'Green Survival Program'

An environmental improvement crusade began five years ago by the American Association of Nurserymen has been sanctioned as an official program of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration. The program is conducted under the descriptive title, "Green Survival."

According to Robert F. Lederer, Executive Vice President of the AAN, the idea behind "Green Survival" is the series of small steps each of us can take to improve the quality of our lives. "Every individual may wish there were things he could do about the environment, but too often the problems just seem greater than the capabilities of a single person acting alone," Lederer says. The message behind Green Survival is that this just isn't so.

"Air, earth, water, sight, sound — are all affected by small acts each of us can take each day. The objective of the Green Survival program is to help everyone be acquainted with the many small steps with large consequences that are available to all of us."

In adopting the Green Survival program of the nursery industry as an official part of the Bicentennial celebration, the ARBA has recognized it as a means to help decorate America for her 200th birthday and to benefit our surroundings in the Third Century. Through the program the nursery industry will cooperate with the Bicentennial Administration in encouraging and assisting private citizens and communities in various environmental improvement efforts.

"If every homeowner planted a single tree or bush to help muffle noise, help clean the air, the impact on America would be enormous," the AAN official cites as an example.

For centuries the world has recognized the value of green, growing plant life to protect the beauty of our surroundings. But now an urgent new value has come to be realized — the vital role of trees, shrubs, grass, plants as environmental demands, to save man from his own ecological abuse.

To prepare and protect America's environment for her 200th birthday and the Third Century, the color of survival is mainly green. And, as the program recently adopted by the Bicentennial Administration says, "Green Survival depends on you."

Farms Dependent On Borrowed Cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new study by the Agriculture Department shows that the farms which produce most of the nation's food and fiber are becoming increasingly dependent on borrowed capital.

The study, published Monday by the department's Economic Research Service, also said that the number of farms having annual sales of $20,000 or more has increased dramatically over the years.

"For example, in 1960 they were less than 10 per cent of the total number of farms but accounted for half of all product sales, and in 1973 they made up only a little over one-third of the number but sold nearly 90 per cent of the total product sales," the report said.

Thus, the report showed, in 1973 it took only about one million of the nation's 2.8 million farms to provide nearly all of the nation's food and fiber.

"Farms with $20,000 or over in sales in 1960 owned about 36 per cent of the total farm assets and made one-half the sales," the report said. "In 1973, they had 71 per cent of the assets and sold nearly 90 per cent of farm products. Those farms owed 43 per cent of total farm debt in 1960 but by 1973 their proportion had jumped to 77 per cent."

Commenting further on the rising proportion of farm debts to assets, the report said that farms in the higher sales categories — the $20,000 annual sales or up — consistently showed a growing dependence on borrowed capital during the 1960-73 period.

The report also said the figures supported the belief "that many operators of farms in the smaller classes are part-time or retired farmers with no great incentive to expand the scope of their farming operations through debt or other means."

Although the report did not include net income figures, earlier USDA reviews showed that the larger farms having $20,000 annual sales or more also had the largest profits. In 1973, those farms accounted for 83.6 per cent of net farm income, according to the department.

Get Your Roof In Tip-Top Shape

More than any other single product found on a house, roofing and siding are exposed to the elements constantly and their condition is vitally important for the protection of the homeowner's investment, according to the National Home Improvement Council.

Today's roofing shingles come with guarantees that range from 10 to 25 years. At current average prices, that means that a shingled roof will protect a house from the elements for less than $30 per year and will remain virtually maintenance-free while doing it.

Appearances are deceiving when it comes to judging the condition of a roof. Moisture seeping through unseen leaks down to the roof structure and into the walls can cause serious damage to the home before the homeowner becomes aware of the need for a new roof.

A professional roofing man should be paid to inspect the roof at least every three years. This is especially true if the roof is older than 15 years and in a Southern climate. Sun causes appreciably more damage than winds or rain to the roof.

Warped, cracked or missing shingles are definite signs that surface repairs are in order. They may also point to more serious damage underneath. Moisture in the walls, flaking plaster inside or peeling paint outside might also indicate that the roof is no longer doing its job.

Over-roofing with a variety of shakes or shingles may be the answer to your roofing problem. Overroofing has the advantage of quickly transforming your house with muck and litter because your old roof remains in place, contributing insulation and protection against the unexpected rainstorm during application.

Roofing products range from asbestos and asphalt shingles to red cedar and other wood shakes and shingles.

Products available on the siding market are numerous. One such product is solid vinyl siding. This material can't rot, blister, peel or decay. It doesn't ever require painting, and colors permeate the material, so they won't disappear with the ravages of weather or time. Vinyl also has insulating properties which make it attractive during these days of energy concern.

Aluminum siding also offers low maintenance qualities, plus a number of interesting embossed woodgrain effects. Baked-on colors prevent chipping, blistering and flaking.

Whatever its finish, texture or color, aluminum cleans easily with water alone or with a mild detergent solution followed by rinsing and drying. Over the years, savings in time, maintenance and materials can add up to an impressive total.

Durability is an important property of aluminum. Depending upon the product, lifetimes of 20 to 30 years are not uncommon. Also, aluminum may readily be painted, repainted or re-enamelled.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Barks At Doggie-Bag Guests

DEAR ABBY: I got a kick out of the woman who took an extra large second helping and then asked for a "doggie bag" to take her leftovers home with her.

It reminded me of the time I prepared a sumptuous spread for three couples. (I love to cook.) One woman phoned just a few minutes before the time she should have arrived to ask if she and her husband could bring a friend and to inform me that they would be a "little late."

The three of them arrived an hour and 15 minutes later half gassed.

Well, this late broad said she wasn't hungry, but everything looked so good she wondered if I'd give her a doggie bag.

I said, "I have my OWN doggie, and I am it. Therefore, I do not provide my guest with doggie bags. Also, people who have the bad manners to show up an hour and 15 minutes late don't deserve any consideration, and this is the last time you'll be invited here!"

The other guests were somewhat uptight about the confrontation, but the only way to treat people with guts is to out-gut them.

GUTSIE IN OXNARD

DEAR GUTSIE: Your bark is as bad as your bite. But you can give lessons on how to end an undesirable friendship.

DEAR ABBY: I have often wanted to write to you, but never had reason until now. My problem is my mother. She wants surgery done on her "grapes" to have them enlarged to about grapefruit size.

My father keeps saying no-he likes her dried raisins the way they are. Mom disagrees and is willing to give up a vacation in order to have the surgery done.

It all started as a joke, but it turns out that Mom is dead serious. She's even underlined the plastic surgeon's name in the phone book. She says she wants something BIG for her 40th birthday.

How do you feel about the situation?

GRAPENUTS

DEAR GRAPENUTS: If this would be good for your mother's morale-why not? I only hope that she and your father can agree on a fruit that's not forbidden.

DEAR ABBY: Recently we went out to dinner with two other couples. When the check came one of the men insisted on paying for everything with his credit card (obviously his company's). Then he collected the cash from the rest of us.

I have been told that he does this all the time. How does a person go about putting a stop to this sort of thing? I don't like to be used as a "customer."

And knowing that he uses us as so-called business write-offs when we are just social friends makes me feel like a party to something dishonest.

Any suggestion?

USED IN CHICAGO

DEAR USED: If you are certain that your friend is using you in this manner, either tell him you won't go along with it or quit going along with HIM.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "10-YEARS OLD IN MADISON, WISC.": If I could give you and your classmates just one bit of advice that would make you "smarter," it would be: "Read, read read and read some more. The person who doesn't read has no advantage over the person who can't read."

Quintuplets Are Given Their Names

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—The Levy quintuplets, their chances of survival improving almost daily, are one week old today and have received names.

Doctors said the five infants have "an excellent chance of survival."

Mark and Pamela Levy told General Hospital officials they have named the three girls Randi Jill, Michelle Amy, Allison Stacey, and the boys Neal Richard and David Eric.

Mrs. Levy, making slow progress after her caesarean section, was allowed to watch television Monday night for the first time since the multiple birth.

Pediatricians said it would be at least two weeks before any of the infants would be strong enough to leave the hospital. That means they'll miss "Levy Week," which is being celebrated in their hometown of Fairfield.

Four of the five infants remain in incubators. The firstborn and heaviest of the quint—Randi Jill—was removed from her incubator Friday and placed in a crib. Another girl is soon to leave her incubator, according to doctors. All the infants are being bottle fed.

Dr. Joseph Lindner said the babies' chances for survival were increased by the mother's decision to remain in bed for the last three weeks of pregnancy.

Divide And Conquer Those Kitchen Chores

Kitchen planners continue to recommend incorporation of the "work triangle" in plans for an efficient kitchen, according to the National Home Improvement Council.

A truly working kitchen is no accident, but begins with three well-planned work centers.

The sink should be the first of the work centers to be placed. Traditionally, the sink is found under a window, but if locating it there puts it out of reach of the refrigerator, it can be located on an inside wall or island, which would make the window space available for a dining or seating area.

The second work area or center is the refrigerator. It should be placed so the door, or doors, open away from counter serving it.

The cooking area is the third center, completing the work triangle. This is the path walked as the homemaker works in her kitchen.

Professional kitchen planners advise starting at the center front of the sink, measuring to the center front of the range, then to the refrigerator and back to the sink. If the distance between any two of these work centers is less than four feet, sufficient counter or storage space serving each center will be missed.

If any one path is more than seven feet (with the exception of the distance between refrigerator to range which can be as much as nine feet) unnecessary walking distances will result. All of these paths together should not be less than 12 feet or more than 22 feet.

Get Your Roof In Tip-Top Shape

More than any other single product found on a house, roofing and siding are exposed to the elements constantly and their condition is vitally important for the protection of the homeowner's investment, according to the National Home Improvement Council.

Today's roofing shingles come with guarantees that range from 10 to 25 years. At current average prices, that means that a shingled roof will protect a house from the elements for less than $30 per year and will remain virtually maintenance-free while doing it.

Appearances are deceiving when it comes to judging the condition of a roof. Moisture seeping through unseen leaks down to the roof structure and into the walls can cause serious damage to the home before the homeowner becomes aware of the need for a new roof.

A professional roofing man should be paid to inspect the roof at least every three years. This is especially true if the roof is older than 15 years and in a Southern climate. Sun causes appreciably more damage than winds or rain to the roof.

Warped, cracked or missing shingles are definite signs that surface repairs are in order. They may also point to more serious damage underneath. Moisture in the walls, flaking plaster inside or peeling paint outside might also indicate that the roof is no longer doing its job.

Over-roofing with a variety of shakes or shingles may be the answer to your roofing problem. Overroofing has the advantage of quickly transforming your house with muss and litter because your old roof remains in place, contributing insulation and protection against the unexpected rainstorm during application.

Roofing products range from asbestos and asphalt shingles to red cedar and other wood shakes and shingles.

Products available on the siding market are numerous. One such product is solid vinyl siding. This material can't rot, blister, peel or decay. It doesn't ever require painting, and colors permeate the material, so they won't disappear with the ravages of weather or time. Vinyl also has insulating properties which make it attractive during these days of energy concern.

Aluminum siding also offers low maintenance qualities, plus a number of interesting embossed woodgrain effects. Baked-on colors prevent chipping, blistering and flaking.

Whatever its finish, texture or color, aluminum cleans easily with water alone or with a mild detergent solution followed by rinsing and drying. Over the years, savings in time, maintenance and materials can add up to an impressive total.

Durability is an important property of aluminum. Depending upon the product, lifetimes of 20 to 30 years are not uncommon. Also, aluminum may readily be painted, repainted or re-enameled.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren
Barks At Doggie-Bag Guests

DEAR ABBY: I got a kick out of the woman who took an extra large second helping and then asked for a "doggie bag" to take her leftovers home with her.

It reminded me of the time I prepared a sumptuous spread for three couples. (I love to cook.) One woman phoned just a few minutes before the time she should have arrived to ask if she and her husband could bring a friend and to inform me that they would be a "little late."

The three of them arrived an hour and 15 minutes late half gassed.

Well, this late broad said she wasn't hungry, but everything looked so good she wondered if I'd give her a doggie bag.

I said, "I have my OWN doggie, and I am it. Therefore, I do not provide my guest with doggie bags. Also, people who have the bad manners to show up an hour and 15 minutes late don't deserve any consideration, and this is the last time you'll be invited here!"

The other guests were somewhat uptight about the confrontation, but the only way to treat people with guts is to out-gut them.

GUTSIE IN OXNARD
DEAR GUTSIE: Your bark is as bad as your bite. But you can give lessons on how to end an undesirable friendship.

DEAR ABBY: I have often wanted to write to you, but never had reason until now. My problem is my mother. She wants surgery done on her "grapes" to have them enlarged to about grapefruit size.

My father keeps saying no-he likes her dried raisins the way they are. Mom disagrees and is willing to give up a vacation in order to have the surgery done.

It all started as a joke, but it turns out that Mom is dead serious. She's even underlined the plastic surgeon's name in the phone book. She says she wants something BIG for her 40th birthday.

How do you feel about the situation?

GRAPENUTS
DEAR GRAPENUTS: If this would be good for your mother's morale-why not? I only hope that she and your father can agree on a fruit that's not forbidden.

DEAR ABBY: Recently we went out to dinner with two other couples. When the check came one of the men insisted on paying for everything with his credit card (obviously his company's). Then he collected the cash from the rest of us.

I have been told that he does this all the time. How does a person go about putting a stop to this sort of thing? I don't like to be used as a "customer."

And knowing that he uses us as so-called business write-offs when we are just social friends makes me feel like a party to something dishonest.

Any suggestion?

USED IN CHICAGO
DEAR USED: If you are certain that your friend is using you in this manner, either tell him you won't go along with it or quit going along with HIM.

Quintuplets Are Given Their Names

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—The Levy quintuplets, their chances of survival improving almost daily, are one week old today and have received names.

Doctors said the five infants have "an excellent chance of survival."

Mark and Pamela Levy told General Hospital officials they have named the three girls Randi Jill, Michelle Amy, Allison Stacey, and the boys Neal Richard and David Eric.

Mrs. Levy, making slow progress after her caesarean section, was allowed to watch television Monday night for the first time since the multiple birth.

Pediatricians said it would be at least two weeks before any of the infants would be strong enough to leave the hospital. That means they'll miss "Levy Week," which is being celebrated in their hometown of Fairfield.

Four of the five infants remain in incubators. The firstborn and heaviest of the quint—Randi Jill—was removed from her incubator Friday and placed in a crib. Another girl is soon to leave her incubator, according to doctors. All the infants are being bottle fed.

Dr. Joseph Lindner said the babies' chances for survival were increased by the mother's decision to remain in bed for the last three weeks of pregnancy.

Divide And Conquer Those Kitchen Chores

Kitchen planners continue to recommend incorporation of the "work triangle" in plans for an efficient kitchen, according to the National Home Improvement Council.

A truly working kitchen is no accident, but begins with three well-planned work centers.

The sink should be the first of the work centers to be placed. Traditionally, the sink is found under a window, but if locating it there puts it out of reach of the refrigerator, it can be located on an inside wall or island, which would make the window space available for a dining or seating area.

The second work area or center is the refrigerator. It should be placed so the door, or doors, open away from counter serving it.

The cooking area is the third center, completing the work triangle. This is the path walked as the homemaker works in her kitchen.

Professional kitchen planners advise starting at the center front of the sink, measuring to the center front of the range, then to the refrigerator and back to the sink. If the distance between any two of these work centers is less than four feet, sufficient counter or storage space serving each center will be missed.

If any one path is more than seven feet (with the exception of the distance between refrigerator to range which can be as much as nine feet) unnecessary walking distances will result. All of these paths together should not be less than 12 feet or more than 22 feet.

PRECARIOUS PERCH—A South Vietnamese militiaman's pet parakeet perches on the muzzle of a grenade launcher outside a camp area northwest of Saigon.

Remedy Growing Pains By Enclosing The Porch

You may have the basic structure for that extra room you need without even realizing it. If you own an older home that has a porch, enclosing it could give you year-round, extra living space.

Some basic essentials such as a roof, floor, supports and one wall already exist. A porch enclosure, therefore, should be a more economical home improvement than an add-a-room project in terms of material, time and labor.

ALL-YEAR PORCH

To make a porch enclosure livable year-round, insulation will have to be added to the floor, walls and ceiling, a method devised to heat the room — such as baseboard heating — and windows installed.

Ample use of windows can retain the advantageous qualities of broad views, fresh air and sunshine that a porch offers.

These benefits are best achieved by installing good ventilating windows such as wood casements or slider units. Both styles in ponderosa pine with insulating glass — two panes of glass with an insulating air space between — can be purchased in a variety of sizes at local home centers or building supply dealers.

OTHER BENEFITS

Wood windows have additional benefits. The insulating glass in combination with factory-applied weatherstripping and the natural insulation provided by the wood sash and frame guard against excessive heat loss and assure snug closure. Windows of ponderosa pine with insulating glass also put an end to the spring and fall job of taking down and putting up storm sash. And these units are easier to clean because there are only two surfaces to wash instead of four.

Urge Inspector For Medicare

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, plans to introduce legislation Thursday to create a special "inspector general" for the Medicare program.

Such an office was approved by the Senate in 1972 as part of a broader bill on Social Security revisions, but it was dropped in the subsequent House-Senate conference on conflicting versions of the measure.

Vanik's office said Monday that he has been discussing the idea with top Social Security Administration officials who also like the idea.

The inspector would be independent but within the Health, Education and Welfare Department structure, aides said.

HEW has such officials already in other agencies but not one specifically responsible for probes of Medicare fraud, waste, inefficiencies and quality of service.

Whats, Wheres, Whys Of Home Laundering

If new laundry appliances are part of your remodeling plan, remember they represent an important purchase, so it's wise to learn as much as you can before you buy.

Because a washer or dryer can be expected to last 10 to 15 years, it's important to choose equipment that will serve your current needs and those that may arise in the future.

First, decide what size you need. Do you want large-capacity appliances that can handle loads up to twice the size washed by most homemakers? Or is space a problem? If so, you may prefer a compact laundry center that takes up only 24½ inches of floor space.

Do you like to determine all of the laundering conditions yourself? There is equipment that lets you do that. But for more precise results, consider truly automatic machines.

If your water supply is a problem, a variable water level control that allows you to select exactly the right amount of water for any size load may be important.

These are just some of the features that can make your life easier. When shopping, also consider the store where you will buy your new laundry equipment. The average family moves every five years, so make sure you can get service no matter where you might move.

You're buying important appliances and you'll have them for years. So decide on the basis of your own family's needs and you'll make the right decisions.

Harsha Reports

BY WILLIAM H. HARSHA
Representative To Congress
Sixth District Of Ohio

If you placed a bureaucrat in the middle of the desert and handed him $1,000 with orders to spend it, he would — even if he had to buy sand with it.

There is an unwritten rule in the Federal Government — never end the fiscal year with money unspent, regardless of whether there is a logical way to spend it.

All of which may help to explain why the State Department is spending $25,000 to do research into ancient Nubian monuments in Egypt and the Sudan. Or perhaps, why the Moroccans were given $37,314 for a potato chip machine. Or why we gave the Bedouin tribes a $17,000 dry-cleaning plant.

Ridiculous as some of those expenditures may sound, they are no more illogical than some of the giveaways sponsored by the National Science Foundation.

In a period when every American is struggling against almost hopeless odds to make ends meet, the National Science Foundation is spending $45,000 for a two-year study on the "population ecology and genetics of the red-spotted newt." And they kicked in another $25,000 for a study on primate teeth, $112,000 to examine the African climate during the last Ice Age, $81,000 to study the social behavior of the Alaskan Brown Bear, and $84,000 on why people fall in love. All of this after spending $15,000 on a study on hitchhiking.

In addition, this foundation made a rather substantial award to an author to write a biography of Isaac Newton. The Library of Congress already has on its shelves 23 biographies of Newton by 23 different authors. I believe that it is fair to question if the taxpayers' dollars should be used to fund another.

The National Science Foundation isn't the only giveaway artist. The National Institute of Health not only decided to fund an extremely questionable study into the sexual habits of university women, but gave the researcher nearly $100,000 more than he asked for to do the study. How about these projects: $53,000 for a dictionary on the Galla Language, $23,000 to study the flora and fauna of the Fiji Island area, $3,500 to train Good Humor Men, and $5,000 to study the difference between native American and Indian whistling ducks.

It would be laughable if it weren't for the fact that these examples are just the tip of the iceberg where it comes to waste in the Federal budget. There are dozens upon dozens of federal agencies and each is trying to outdo the other in spending money.

Unfortunately, these agencies have only one source of money — your pocket and mine.

The federal government just made its annual visit to our pocketbook, pulling in some $118.9 billion or so in individual income taxes. And, now that the bureaucrats are flush again, we can expect to see some more giveaways such as the $85,000 study of the "cultural, economic, and social impact of rural road construction in Poland."

Even the federal judicial system isn't immune to the lure of dipping into the federal coffers.

When the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts submitted its annual budget request to Congress, included in the $347 million total was a $3 million item for observance of the American Revolution Bicentennial.

Did they really have any plans on how to spend the $3 million? Not really, they just felt it would be nice to get involved.

And how about the "Odor Measuring Machine" purchased for the Turks at a cost of $28,361 to the American taxpayer.

In 1972, the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service and Great Plains program paid $67,795 to the Royal Family of England for not planting cotton in Mississippi.

No wonder the experts are predicting a $100 billion deficit for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Ohio Political Banner Discovered

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—A rare relic of Ohio's political past, retrieved from a pile of trash, is up for sale to the highest bidder, according to the finder.

William Metcalfe, a Cincinnati antique dealer says he discovered the 135-year-old political marching banner over a year ago in a Centerville barn and purchased it "at junk value price." He says it has been appraised at $35,000.

The five foot-by-six foot oil on canvas banner was displayed during the 1840 Whig Party's gubernatorial convention at Dayton where an appearance by presidential candidate William Henry Harrison attracted a crowd of 100,000, according to Metcalfe.

"I researched hundreds of newspapers and documents to authenticate it. What a rare find. I've never seen one before," said Metcalfe.

Metcalfe plans to sell it to the highest bidder and said he has had feelers from the Smithsonian Institute, Ohio Historical Society and an area museum.

The banner has a painting of George Washington and the words: "Washington Township" and "Spirit of 76," on one side. The other side illustrates the 1812 Battle of Lake Erie. The banner belonged to the Whig delegation from Washington Township, which is located near Dayton.

Metcalfe's agent, Mark Goldman, a Cincinnati schoolteacher, said an attempt is being made to discover the name of the artist. "If we come up with a signature, lord only knows how much the price could be," he said.

Another expert, Bill Guthman, a military history antiquary from Connecticut, said he inspected Metcalfe's find and agreed it was "an original political banner. Any flag or banner from that period is extremely rare because the survival rate was very low."

Metcalfe said he discovered the banner in a pile of junk in a Centerville barn and has since researched in depth to pinpoint its history. "It would have been thrown out if I hadn't got there," he said.

Metcalfe said he linked the banner to the 1840 convention through an article in the Dayton Log Cabin.

Audits Bring Findings For Recovery

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state auditor's office has announced a $3,447 finding for recovery of funds spent by the Trumbull County Law Library Association.

A regular audit of the association showed mistakes in disbursing funds to county courts, the auditor's office said today.

The findings included $90 against the law library and for the City of Niles and $170 against the law library and for Trumbull County, both because of insufficient refunds.

They also included three findings in favor of Trumbull County, against the cities of Newton Falls, $816; Girard, $2,269, and Warren, $100.

The law library handles funds collected as fines in criminal cases. The audit covered the period from June 13, 1970 to Aug. 31, 1972.

In another audit, the auditor issued a finding of $1,792 in favor of the Columbus Development Department against L. R. Wheeler and his bonding company, the Wolverine Insurance Co.

The auditor said Wheeler paid the sum on Jan. 17. It represented collections for which no accounting had been made, the auditor said.

The auditor also issued a finding for recovery of $32 against Nihla M. Davis, clerk-treasurer of the Village of North Star in Darke County. The money allegedly was used for the purchase of alcoholic beverages.

The auditor also criticized officers of the Oberlin City School District for sloppy bookkeeping, but issued no findings for recovery.

The auditor said the district's books had not been balanced since June, 1972; that checks were issued without funds deposited to cover them, and that accounts were comingled.

Riverboat Race Nears

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— With calliopes hissing, the Delta Queen was scheduled to steam into its home port at Cincinnati today to load passengers for a trip to Louisville and renewal of the 12th annual race for river supremacy.

The 49-year-old steamboat, the only paddle wheeler permitted to carry overnight customers in the nation, will be after its third straight victory Wednesday over the 10-mile course. The field will be enlarged to three steamboats this year, made up of The Queen, longtime rival Belle of Louisville and newcomer Julia Belle Swaim of Peoria, Ill.

The race is part of the festivities for the 102nd running of the Kentucky Derby.

The Queen took a 6-5 edge over the Belle of Louisville last year, with Capt. Ernest "Cap" Wagner crediting the triumph to the installation of a small propeller on the bow. The addition created a wave of protests from Belle backers, who claimed the new prop gave The Queen more mobility on turns and approaches into locks.

Whats, Wheres, Whys Of Home Laundering

If new laundry appliances are part of your remodeling plan, remember they represent an important purchase, so it's wise to learn as much as you can before you buy.

Because a washer or dryer can be expected to last 10 to 15 years, it's important to choose equipment that will serve your current needs and those that may arise in the future.

First, decide what size you need. Do you want large-capacity appliances that can handle loads up to twice the size washed by most homemakers? Or is space a problem? If so, you may prefer a compact laundry center that takes up only 24½ inches of floor space.

Do you like to determine all of the laundering conditions yourself? There is equipment that lets you do that. But for more precise results, consider truly automatic machines.

If your water supply is a problem, a variable water level control that allows you to select exactly the right amount of water for any size load may be important.

These are just some of the features that can make your life easier. When shopping, also consider the store where you will buy your new laundry equipment. The average family moves every five years, so make sure you can get service no matter where you might move.

You're buying important appliances and you'll have them for years. So decide on the basis of your own family's needs and you'll make the right decisions.

Ohio Political Banner Discovered

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—A rare relic of Ohio's political past, retrieved from a pile of trash, is up for sale to the highest bidder, according to the finder.

William Metcalfe, a Cincinnati antique dealer says he discovered the 135-year-old political marching banner over a year ago in a Centerville barn and purchased it "at junk value price." He says it has been appraised at $35,000.

The five foot-by-six foot oil on canvas banner was displayed during the 1840 Whig Party's gubernatorial convention at Dayton where an appearance by presidential candidate William Henry Harrison attracted a crowd of 100,000, according to Metcalfe.

Audits Bring Findings For Recovery

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state auditor's office has announced a $3,447 finding for recovery of funds spent by the Trumbull County Law Library Association.

A regular audit of the association showed mistakes in disbursing funds to county courts, the auditor's office said today.

The findings included $90 against the law library and for the City of Niles and $170 against the law library and for Trumbull County, both because of insufficient refunds.

They also included three findings in favor of Trumbull County, against the cities of Newton Falls, $816; Girard, $2,269, and Warren, $100.

The law library handles funds collected as fines in criminal cases. The audit covered the period from June 13, 1970 to Aug. 31, 1972.

Harsha Reports

BY WILLIAM H. HARSHA
Representative To Congress
Sixth District Of Ohio

If you placed a bureaucrat in the middle of the desert and handed him $1,000 with orders to spend it, he would — even if he had to buy sand with it.

There is an unwritten rule in the Federal Government — never end the fiscal year with money unspent, regardless of whether there is a logical way to spend it.

All of which may help to explain why the State Department is spending $25,000 to do research into ancient Nubian monuments in Egypt and the Sudan. Or perhaps, why the Moroccans were given $37,314 for a potato chip machine. Or why we gave the Bedouin tribes a $17,000 dry-cleaning plant.

Ridiculous as some of those expenditures may sound, they are no more illogical than some of the giveaways sponsored by the National Science Foundation.

In a period when every American is struggling against almost hopeless odds to make ends meet, the National Science Foundation is spending $45,000 for a two-year study on the "population ecology and genetics of the red-spotted newt." And they kicked in another $25,000 for a study on primate teeth, $112,000 to examine the African climate during the last Ice Age, $81,000 to study the social behavior of the Alaskan Brown Bear, and $84,000 on why people fall in love. All of this after spending $15,000 on a study on hitchhiking.

In addition, this foundation made a rather substantial award to an author to write a biography of Isaac Newton. The Library of Congress already has on its shelves 23 biographies of Newton by 23 different authors. I believe that it is fair to question if the taxpayers' dollars should be used to fund another.

The National Science Foundation isn't the only giveaway artist. The National Institute of Health not only decided to fund an extremely questionable study into the sexual habits of university women, but gave the researcher nearly $100,000 more than he asked for to do the study. How about these projects: $53,000 for a dictionary on the Galla Language, $23,000 to study the flora and fauna of the Fiji Island area, $3,500 to train Good Humor Men, and $5,000 to study the difference between native American and Indian whistling ducks.

It would be laughable if it weren't for the fact that these examples are just the tip of the iceberg where it comes to waste in the Federal budget. There are dozens upon dozens of federal agencies and each is trying to outdo the other in spending money.

Unfortunately, these agencies have only one source of money — your pocket and mine.

The federal government just made its annual visit to our pocketbook, pulling in some $118.9 billion or so in individual income taxes. And, now that the bureaucrat are flush again, we can expect to see some more giveaways such as the $85,000 study of the "cultural, economic, and social impact of rural road construction in Poland."

Even the federal judicial system isn't immune to the lure of dipping into the federal coffers.

When the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts submitted its annual budget request to Congress, included in the $347 million total was a $3 million item for observance of the American Revolution Bicentennial.

Did they really have any plans on how to spend the $3 million? Not really, they just felt it would be nice to get involved.

And how about the "Odor Measuring Machine" purchased for the Turks at a cost of $28,361 to the American taxpayer.

In 1972, the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service and Great Plains program paid $87,795 to the Royal Family of England for not planting cotton in Mississippi.

No wonder the experts are predicting a $100 billion deficit for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Curb an inclination to act or make decisions too quickly. In holding discussions, don't try to force issues or you could overshoot a safe mark.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Great activity indicated in your area — which should prove highly stimulating. Especially favored: creative interests, community projects, travel plans.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Personal relationships should be highly congenial now. In fact, some of your brighter and more amusing companions could give you some stimulating ideas.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Place your confidence in hard facts rather than "feeling" and, in discussions with others, don't be overly imaginative. You could read too much in their words.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Though many means for advancement exist, you could throw a wrench into the machinery if your attitudes are suspicious, your approaches tactless. Beware!

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Planetary restrictions lift now so you will find achievement considerably easier. Not only should routine matters go well, but you may even have an opportunity to cash in on an avocational skill.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): The discerning Libran should find this period entertaining and instructive. Be ready for new beginnings, sharpened incentive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Once sure that your ideas have good potentialities, lose no time in trying to bring them to realization. Good Mars influences should help you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Conjur up imaginary obstacles may be day's drawback. This could result in mental blocks. Look on the bright facets; stress optimism.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Be flexible enough in thought to take in a brand new idea — and make it work! Resist doubting and tendencies toward hypercriticism.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): A good day for long-range thinking and plans. Review carefully before launching unfamiliar ventures, but do not hesitate to try for a new achievement.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Follow your instincts now. Your native intuition should be at a peak and disclose heartening new vistas which will open to you shortly.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with great dignity, a remarkable memory and unusual powers of intuition. You are sensitive and imaginative; have a dry and subtle sense of humor. If you take up writing or painting — as many Taurus do — these latter traits will probably dominate your work. You can converse on a wide range of subjects and this fact, coupled with your warmth and understanding, combine to make you a delightful companion. On the negative side: You can be extremely stubborn at times; also, dogmatic in expressing opinions. Curb! Many artists, teachers, surgeons and entertainers have been Taurus-born.

Patrolman Receives ACE Award

Columbus - Ptl. Ronald L. Hoeft, an Ohio State Highway Patrol officer stationed at the Castalia Post, received the Division's second ACE Award of 1975 in ceremonies held at the Post today.

Ptl. Hoeft was honored for his excellence in the field of auto larceny enforcement. Since the beginning of the year he has recovered five stolen vehicles and made on-the-spot apprehensions of the thieves involved.

The officer recovered four cars and a truck worth a total of $24,000. All vehicles were recovered on the Turnpike and three displayed out-of-state license plates from Michigan and Virginia.

Ptl. Hoeft recovered the first stolen car in January, one in February, two in March, and the fifth on April 21. He received special ACE license plates for his patrol car, a certificate, and a ribbon to be worn on his uniform.

A member of the Highway Patrol since July, 1973, Ptl. Hoeft has been stationed at Castalia since that time. He is originally from Oregon in Lucas County where he graduated from Clay High School. Prior to joining the Patrol he served four years in the U. S. Navy.

Teays Valley Board Re-Employs Staff; Makes Cutbacks In Teachers And Others

The Teays Valley Board of Education voted to re-employ both the teaching and non-certificated staff Monday night and also approved cutbacks in both categories. Fifty teachers whose contracts expire this year were re-employed as recommended by the county and local superintendents.

Approval was made for notification of the five teachers not recommended for re-employment. Local superintendent Benis Lutz said some of these teachers were eliminated because of reorganization of subject matter at the high school. One of the five teachers lacks proper certification and two others were filling in for two teachers who were on leaves of absence.

Thirteen non-certificated staff members who were up for consideration were re-employed. The board also approved notification of the nine non-certificated staff members whose contracts were not recommended for continuation. Lutz said all of these were cutbacks and included educational aides and one bus driver.

The board voted to notify those teachers who were not recommended for supplemental contracts for the 1975-76 school term. Most of those teachers had indicated that they wished to be relieved of the assignments.

Salary schedules were amended for cafeteria managers and cafeteria workers to allow for the reduction of their day from seven hours to six and a half hours. All cafeteria workers will work the shortened day. A study revealed that by cutting each worker back one half hour, the board could efficiently make all cafeteria workers full-time.

Lutz said even with the shortened day, the workers would still make more than last year with the new salary schedule.

In other action on employment, the board approved the supplemental contracts as recommended by the superintendent. The list included 62 positions for the 1975-76 school year. Approval was also made for substitute teacher list No. 12 as issued by the county board of education for the remainder of this school year.

Approval was given for the base salaries, supplemental salaries and total salaries of all certificated staff members who are currently employed for the 1975-76 school term. This approval included 129 teachers. There were 132 last year. Three of those teachers were cut back and the positions may or may not be filled according to the superintendent.

The basic salaries of the 63 non-certificated staff members who are currently employed for the next school year was also approved. Authorization was then made for the creation of positions for educational aides for the Title I program for the 1975-76 school year. Personnel was authorized to fill these positions on the current educational aide salary schedule for the number of days and the total number of hours as determined by the administration. Title I is a federally-funded program. Lutz said some of those aides previously eliminated could be reconsidered if they qualify.

Approval was also made for 11 certificated staff members to take professional leave.

Authorization was made for the State School Employees Retirement System to withhold money from the next state distribution amounts on four part-time employees. These employees had previously established credit in the retirement system.

The board approved the use of the Walnut Building by the Circleville Church of God and payment of David Barnett for supervision.

A resolution of approval was also made for the little league organizations to use the Scioto School for little league basketball for next year. The program is for students eight years old through the sixth grade. Scheduling is to be coordinated with the principal and John Kaiser who is responsible for the organization.

Under educational materials, the board adopted the Zener Blosser "Creative Growth in Handwriting" writing program. A resolution was also passed to contract with the Metropolitan Education Council (MEC) for the 1975-76 school year. It is a secondary computer package for grading and attendance at the high school.

James Hopper, mayor of the village of Ashville, met with the board to explain the village's status regarding sanitary sewer projects and storm sewer projects. The board will meet with the representatives from council in the near future.

A fair board representative also asked the board about renting some of the district's bleachers during fair time. Permission was granted to work out an arrangement and to bring this arrangement back to the board for approval.

Approval was made for advertisement for bids on exterior repairs for the three elementary buildings. The bids are to be returned to the office of the clerk-treasurer no later than noon of May 26. Specifications will be available at the board of education office.

James Perry requested some time at the board meeting to express thoughts relative to a future bond issue. After considerable discussion, the board voted to begin with the May meeting to try to rotate the meetings among the several buildings in the district. The regular May meeting will be held on the 26th at Scioto School. It was the feeling of the board that this arrangement may encourage the residents in the different areas to attend the meetings.

The board agreed to support the Ohio School Board Association policy and legislative committee for the adoption of appropriate legislation to allow for regional councils of government to perform additional functions for school districts. One example of this would be for the council to act as a clearing house for taking bids on buses and other large pieces of equipment.

Consideration of bids on two 66-passenger buses was also presented to the board. There were three bids on the bus body and one chassis bid submitted. The board accepted the low bids on the two bus bodies from the Wayne Company and the two chassis from H and S Service in Circleville for the International chassis.

The cost of the bodies was $5,593.24 each and the chassis was $9,320.01 each, bringing the price of each bus to $14,859.25.

A report from the vocational agriculture department on preliminary plans for the land lab was presented to the board. The board held further discussion regarding the Future Farmers of America purchasing a tractor and the board's involvement on sharing the costs.

In other action, the board approved a transfer from the high school band activity account to the high school athletic association fund equivalent to the costs of transportation for the 1973-74 activities in those areas.

The list of graduating seniors was approved as it tentatively stands.

A discussion was held regarding the window installation at the three elementary schools last summer. A letter from the factory was read to the board which stated that the problem would be clarified.

Reports from the school principals were presented on matters relevant to each school. Activities and schedules for next month and the pre-registration for kindergarten and first grade were among those items presented.

A quotation on lawn treatment was considered but no action taken. The Approval was made for notification of the five teachers not recommended for re-employment. Local superintendent Benis Lutz said some of these teachers were eliminated because of reorganization of subject matter at the high school. One of the five teachers lacks proper certification and two others were filling in for two teachers who were on leaves of absence.

Thirteen non-certificated staff members who were up for consideration were re-employed. The board also approved notification of the nine non-certificated staff members whose contracts were not recommended for continuation. Lutz said all of these were cutbacks and included educational aides and one bus driver.

The board voted to notify those teachers who were not recommended for supplemental contracts for the 1975-76 school term. Most of those teachers had indicated that they wished to be relieved of the assignments.

Salary schedules were amended for cafeteria managers and cafeteria workers to allow from the reduction of their day from seven hours to six and a half hours. All cafeteria workers will work the shortened day. A study revealed that by cutting each worker back one half hour, the board could efficiently make all cafeteria workers full-time.

Lutz said even with the shortened day, the workers would still make more than last year with the new salary schedule.

In other action on employment, the board approved the supplemental contracts as recommended by the superintendent. The list included 62 positions for the 1975-76 school year. Approval was also made for substitute teacher list No. 12 as issued by the county board of education for the remainder of this school year.

Approval was given for the base salaries, supplemental salaries and total salaries of all certificated staff members who are currently employed for the 1975-76 school term. This approval included 129 teachers. There were 132 last year. Three of those teachers were cut back and the positions may or may not be filled according to the superintendent.

The basic salaries of the 63 non-certificated staff members who are currently employed for the next school year was also approved. Authorization was then made for the creation of positions for educational aides for the Title I program for the 1975-76 school year. Personnel was authorized to fill these positions on the current educational aide salary schedule for the number of days and the total number of hours as determined by the administration. Title I is a federally-funded program. Lutz said some of those aides previously eliminated could be reconsidered if they qualify.

Approval was also made for 11 certificated staff members to take professional leave.

Authorization was made for the State School Employees Retirement System to withhold money from the next state distribution amounts on four part-time employees. These employees had previously established credit in the retirement system.

The board approved the use of the Walnut Building by the Circleville Church of God and payment of David Barnett for supervision.

A resolution of approval was also made for the little league organizations to use the Scioto School for little league basketball for next year. The program is for students eight years old through the sixth grade. Scheduling is to be coordinated with the principal and John Kaiser who is responsible for the organization.

Under educational materials, the board adopted the Zener Bloser "Creative Growth in Handwriting" writing program. A resolution was also passed to contract with the Metropolitan Education Council (MEC) for the 1975-76 school year. It is a secondary computer package for grading and attendance at the high school.

James Hopper, mayor of the village of Ashville, met with the board to explain the village's status regarding sanitary sewer projects and storm sewer projects. The board will meet with the representatives from council in the near future.

A fair board representative also asked the board about renting some of the district's bleachers during fair time. Permission was granted to work out an arrangement and to bring this arrangement back to the board for approval.

Approval was made for advertisement for bids on exterior repairs for the three elementary buildings. The bids are to be returned to the office of the clerk-treasurer no later than noon of May 26. Specifications will be available at the board of education office.

James Perry requested some time at the board meeting to express thoughts relative to a future bond issue. After considerable discussion, the board voted to begin with the May meeting to try to rotate the meetings among the several buildings in the district. The regular May meeting will be held on the 26th at Scioto School. It was the feeling of the board that this arrangement may encourage the residents in the different areas to attend the meetings.

The board agreed to support the Ohio School Board Association policy and legislative committee for the adoption of appropriate legislation to allow for regional councils of government to perform additional functions for school districts. One example of this would be for the council to act as a clearing house for taking bids on buses and other large pieces of equipment.

Consideration of bids on two 66-passenger buses was also presented to the board. There were three bids on the bus body and one chassis bid submitted. The board accepted the low bids on the two bus bodies from the Wayne Company and the two chassis from H and S Service in Circleville for the International chassis.

The cost of the bodies was $5,593.24 each and the chassis was $9,320.01 each, bringing the price of each bus to $14,859.25.

A report from the vocational agriculture department on preliminary plans for the land lab was presented to the board. The board held further discussion regarding the Future Farmers of America purchasing a tractor and the board's involvement on sharing the costs.

In other action, the board approved a transfer from the high school band activity account to the high school athletic association fund equivalent to the costs of transportation for the 1973-74 activities in those areas.

The list of graduating seniors was approved as it tentatively stands.

A discussion was held regarding the window installation at the three elementary schools last summer. A letter from the factory was read to the board which stated that the problem would be clarified.

Reports from the school principals were presented on matters relevant to each school. Activities and schedules for next month and the pre-registration for kindergarten and first grade were among those items presented.

A quotation on lawn treatment was considered but no action taken. The
